Brady brought his total score to 221 for the fifty-four holes in a blaze of glory. He was within forty feet of the eighteenth hole after his second shot and ran down the curving long putt, scoring a 3, and maybe the championship title, as all the players who are pressing him hard for first

Percy Thomas, deputy international president of the Telegraphers' Union, declared that about 1,000 operators responded to the strike call in New York and that more would go out before night.

WOMAN FREED IN BARNEY'S ESCAPE

Mrs. Mary E. Collins of No. 158 Warren street, Allston, one of the four defendants charged with aiding in the escape of Herman L. Barney from Charles street jail, was discharged in Brighton District Court today. The court found no probable cause for holding her for the Grand Jury.

Her discharge came on motion of her counsel, Daniel Bradley, following the introduction of rebuttal testimony by the government.

When court was resumed for the afternoon session at 2 o'clock Francis Juggins, counsel for Attorney Thomas F. Murphy and for Miss Marion O'Brien, and Charles Kellough, counsel for Mrs. Lillian M. Ashenden of No. 1412 Commonwealth avenue, the other three defendants, began arguments for the discharge of their clients.

The last witnes for the defence was Benjamin Barrett, of No. 58 Westville street, Dorchester, salesman in a Washington street hat store. He testified to selling Barney the straw

"HERMIT" KILLED FOR MONEY

Dwight Chapman's Mutilated Body Found in Westboro Home

Westboro, June 11.—The mutilated body of Dwight Chapman, seventy-year-old G. A. R. veteran, was found today in the tenement he occupied alone in the rear of No. 40 South street.

According to the police, the man was murdered for his savings, and the mystery was further enhanced by the fact that all doors and windows were securely locked when the police arrived.

Chapman, who was employed as a caretaker on a nearby estate, had not been seen by neighbors for two days. Becoming alarmed today, they notified the police, who broke in the front door. They found the undressed body of the old man lying crosswise on his bed. Chairs were overturned and the bed moved out of position as though a struggle had taken place.

The old man's head and body were slashed in many places, and according to the medical examiner he had been dead for two days. The police were unable to find any weapon and are at a loss as to how the murder was committed. The State Police have been notified and will undertake an investigation of the case.

The police learned that the murdered man was not wealthy, but that he had amassed a considerable sum from his savings. This money was displayed by Chapman several times last week, it is said.

The victim had resided in Westboro for fifty years and, as far as could be learned, had no relatives. For several years he had lived absolutely alone, and apparently had no friends.

DAVISON GOT COPY IN PARIS

Wanted It as Red Cross Head and Also as a Banker, He Tells Senate Probers

Washington, June 11.—It was Henry P. Davison of the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co., who gave him a copy of the peace treaty, Elihu Root, former Senator and Secretary of State, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today.

Root was the first witness called when the committee resumed its probe of treaty "leaks."

Resentment was expressed by Root at President Wilson's "suggestions" that anybody in possession of the treaty in this country had a right to communicate it.

Root declared that the treaty was "public property" inasmuch as Germany had given the document publicity. He justified Davison's possession of it because of the New York banker's connection with the American Red Cross war activities. He said he resented Senator Hitchcock's charge to the Senate that copies of the treaty that might be in private hands in New York City were "stolen goods secured by bribery and corruption."

LAMONT HAD A COPY.

As an "international banker" interested in the co-ordination of American financial and industrial interests for the rehabilitation of war-devastated Europe, Henry P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Company secured a copy of the peace treaty at Paris on May 1 last from Thomas F. Lamont, another member of the banking house, Davison told the committee. He followed Root as a witness.

Davison said he also was interested in the text of the treaty as chairman of the board of governors of the League of Red Cross Societies modeled after the League of Nations.

When he left Paris with the treaty

Wounded Veteran Is Suicide in Lynn Hospital

Louis Christofis, veteran of the war, gassed twice and wounded three times, unable to locate his sister and brother in Lynn, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in the Lynn Hospital today.

Mayor Walter J. Creamer of Lynn interested himself in the case and as a result the local council of the World Veterans of the Great War will defray the man's funeral expenses.

Christofis, who served three years with the Canadian forces, was discharged from a hospital and went to Lynn seeking his relatives. He was unsuccessful, and when a leg wound reopened was sent to the hospital. The man, who was an Albanian, will be buried from the Greek Orthodox Church on South Common Street tomorrow with military escort.

GERMANS TO GET TREATY REPLY ON FRIDAY

Will Be Allowed One Week to Say Yes or No to the Amended Terms

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,

Correspondent of International News Service.

Paris, June 11.—The complete rejoinder of the allies to the German counter-proposals will be handed to Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German peace delegation, on Friday.

The Big Four this morning practically completed the economic conditions and made material progress toward completing the clauses relating to the League of Nations and the left bank of the Rhine. It is planned to allow the German delegation to proceed to Weimar and present the amended treaty for consideration by the German National Assembly. Germany will then be required to signify within a week whether she accepts or rejects the treaty.

Clemenceau and Lloyd George are generally accepting President Wilson's suggestions in dealing with the German counter claims. The President has sharply rebuked the adamant attitude of both, declaring:

"Unless there is the speediest action immediately, it is useless to continue. Bolshevism will triumph over law and order."

His declaration was followed by immediate concessions, making possible an early agreement.

DESCRIBES TEACHER'S "RASH"

Grace Winslow, "Practical Nurse," Gives Recital of Andover Death Scene

Lawrence, June 11.—Mrs. Bessie May (Skeels) Lundgren, the "Sunshine Nurse," sat in the Lawrence courtroom today and heard the story of the death bed scene of the woman for whose murder she stands accused.

Grace Estelle Winslow, "practical nurse," told of how Miss Florence W. Gay, the Abbot Academy teacher, died. Mrs. Lundgren, paler than the white pillow propped against her in the arm chair, never gave a sign by look or act that the death story was of the slightest interest to her.

Not even when Miss Winslow told of the rash on Miss Gay's face and body, the first hint of the State's intent to prove arsenical poison, did the "Sunshine Nurse's" face wear a shadow.

Miss Winslow said she was engaged the day before Miss Gay died by Mrs. Edith McLaulin Luce of Winchester, a relative of Miss Gay.

URGED INVESTIGATION.

This was the first mention of Mrs. Luce in testimony. She is the one who first asked the authorities to investigate the absence, as she said, of certain belongings from the Gay household after the death of Miss Gay.

Mrs. Lundgren faced the third day of her trial in a weakened condition. She was a pitiful figure as she dropped back, half fainting, on her pillows after she was brought into the courtroom.

Alfred Lundgren, the devoted husband, ministered to the defendant with water and fans. In a few min-

MORGAN DECLARED HE NEVER SAW PEACE TREATY

Washington, June 11.—J. Pierpont Morgan took the stand in the Senate treaty probe today and corroborated Davison's testimony, asserting that he had never seen the treaty. He had heard "general talk of there being copies in New York," he testified. Mr. Morgan was excused after being on the stand less than ten minutes. Frank A. Vanderlip, resigned president of the National City Bank, New York, who followed Morgan, declared: "I have no copy of the treaty, and never had."

SAYS GERMANY HOPES FOR HONORABLE POSITION IN LEAGUE

RANTZAU FOR 'FAIR CHANCE'

By WILLIAM J. BUTLER,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Versailles, June 11.—"We will sign the peace terms if there are sufficient modifications."

Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, chief of the German peace delegation, made this statement in an exclusive interview with Universal Service today.

The tall German Foreign Minister, his saturnine countenance occasionally lit up with a smile, chatted several minutes with your correspondent in his rooms at the Hotel Des Reservoirs, all the while tugging at his tiny moustache.

MUM ABOUT SILESIA.

"What do you mean by sufficient modifications?" I asked him.

"I do not wish to go further," was his terse reply.

The correspondent then asked if the proposal to have the league of nations consider Germany's admission to the league at the October meeting in Washington, thus eliminating the necessity of keeping the armies of occupation on the Rhine, would be agreeable to the German government and peace delegation.

The count hedged but finally admitted he thought this would be acceptable.

"How about the proposition of a plebescite in Upper Silesia, with the understanding that you be allowed to purchase coal from Silesia without exploiting it?" was the next question put to the German plenipotentiary.

ANXIOUS FOR PEACE.

"That sounds interesting," he smiled, "but I do not wish to discuss it now."

"I understand," said the correspondent, "the allies intend to promise you in a memorandum answering your counter proposals probably Wednesday, that they intend to have the reparations commission speed up the work of arriving at a definite amount of the total indemnity which will probably be done in about four months. Will this be sufficient cause for you to sign immediately without further protest?"

The count paused for a moment then said:

"It sounds fair, but I can say nothing, at least until I know definitely and officially the proposition of the allied and associated governments.

"However, you can tell the American people, through the medium of your news service, that we place all our hope in the league of nations and want a fair opportunity and fair representation there.

"We are as anxious as the Allies if not more so for speedy peace and will do everything in our power short of signing terms that would crush us."

Asked about the result of his investigation of the situation in the Rhineland where he conferred with leaders about the movement to break away from Germany proper, the count said only:

"I have little cause for fear in regard to that."

The German spokesman then excused himself, saying with a smile he could say nothing further. The correspondent withdrew down the halls filled with officious looking guards and German minor officials through whom he had virtually bored his way into the presence of the leading German diplomat.

DAVISON GIVES ROOT COPY OF TREATY

he was under the impression that it was "public property," he said. When he discovered that it was not, upon his arrival at New York he locked his copy up and since then no one had seen it except Elihu Root because he knew Root, "as a recognized authority on international problems, was being consulted from Paris by them when engaged in peace negotiations."

ELIHU ROOT FIRST WITNESS.

Frank A. Vanderlip, former president of the National City Bank of New York city, showed up just before Senator Lodge as chairman of the committee opened the hearing.

Lodge began by reading a telegram from Jacob H. Schiff of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., in which he "begged to be excused" from appearance before the committee.

"The publication of the purpose of the committee to inquire into the possession of copies of the draft of the treaty with Germany led me to feel that it was proper for me to come here and give the committee certain knowledge which I have," Root said. "I've a copy of the treaty, and have been in possession of it for several weeks. It was sent to me by Mr. Henry P. Davison of the Red Cross," he continued.

"I stand upon my right to have it. I deny that anyone can question that right. I assert the entire propriety of my having it given to me.

"NOT A SECRET DOCUMENT."

"He had it because of his connections with the Red Cross. He had it in Paris and brought it away with him, there being no injunction against bringing it to the United States. I understand that there has since been an injunction.

"It was not a secret document in any sense of the word. It had been published in substance in our country. The League of Nations' part had ben published in full and the labor part also.

"The paper was presented to the German delegates early in May, and they almost immediately made it public in full and it thereupon became public property. There are always two parties to diplomatic negotiations, and either party can make the matter public. The German government having the entire right to make this paper public—and it is public—I rather resent that I have not the right to have the treaty and to use it as I intend to use it.

JUSTIFIES DAVISON.

"I feel competent to say to the committee that the relations of the Red Cross to the revision of international relations were such that Mr. Davidson's possession of that paper was no idle curiosity, but was duty on the part of a man who has abandoned his business and conferred an estimable benefit upon the good name of the American people."

At this point Senator Knox interrupted:

"Mr. Root, I gather that you want to be understood that you are not in possession of stolen goods, probably secured by bribery, as has been suggested on the floor of the Senate."

"I repel any such suggestion, and I wish to indicate that the possession of such knowledge is legitimate. I say that it was the duty of Mr. Davison to keep in touch with the new

"I was very much obliged to him because I am deeply interested in some questions. There is nothing in substance in the treaty which has not been in the newspapers."

NOTHING NEW IN TREATY.

"Did you find anything in the treaty which was not substantially in the summary?" asked Senator Williams.

"I did not compare the labor articles, but I found nothing. The only thing I compared with the summary was the little part which related to the terms with Germany."

Senator Hitchcock stated that the investigation had been brought about by charges which indicated that possession of the treaty was for private purposes, "and I want you to know that it was to that I referred when I made my statement about stolen goods and bribery," Hitchcock said.

"I want to say that the statement about bribery and corruption was made with reference to the copy of the treaty I had," interjected Senator Lodge.

"I consider the Red Cross had a legitimate interest," said Senator Hitchcock.

HITCHCOCK A TARGET.

Senators Fall, Brandegee and Knox then attacked Senator Hitchcock, charging him with attempting to sidestep his charges of bribery.

"I was not connected wi the Red Cross when I received the treaty," Root explained.

"What is the name of your law firm?" asked Senator Borah.

"I am not a member of any law firm, but there is a firm of which my son is the head," said Root.

"Dou you know of other copies of the treaty?" asked Senator Johnson.

"I do not," answered Root.

Root said he did not believe it was incumbent upon the President to send the treaty to the Senate.

Henry P. Davison, the next witness, said the copy of the treaty he brought to this country has never been read by any man in this country "except Senator Root and myself."

"It was as chairman of the League of Red Cross Societies that I became interested in this matter, and that is the primary reason that I became possessed of the treaty," he continued. "There is another reason. I, as a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan and Company, had to do with the financial part of some of the countries.

NATIONS ASK FOR CREDIT.

"My whole time just before I left Paris was devoted to the Red Cross, but naturally while I was there I was visited by representatives of various governments regarding the finances of Europe. It became obvious that all Europe would be coming here to get credits—so obcious that I made the statement that in my opinion the financial arrangements could not be handled by one house, but by all the financial interests of the country, and in order to meet the needs of Europe the finances should be co-ordinate.

"As an international banker, I say that this treaty is of interest to all bankers. I had the support of the treasury, and they asked me to go on and co-ordinate the financial interests. We have met in New York and we will meet in Chicago on Friday. We haven't got peace yet, and we won't get peace until those conditions have been met."

Russian Noblemen Work Passage on British Ship

New York, June 11.—Princes by the score, nobility by the hundreds, with a few generals thrown in as good measure, scrubbed decks, worked for the ship's cook and did other menial tasks aboard the British steamer, Bermudian, which docked here after a voyage from Black Sea ports.

Captain C. Dickinson told how the Bermodian transported the half-starved, ragged Russians from Constantinople to Malta after the British ship Phrygia had furnished them refuge at Yalta, Russia.

There were twenty princes, thirty-two princesses, one of them Princess Dadestkaveam, daughter of a Cossock ruler. Twenty generals and numerous counts and countesses in the party.

The vessel was the first craft to go through the Dardanelles after the armistice was signed.

ADMITS MAKING COUNTERFEIT MONEY

Martello Was Arrested With Several Others in Raid on House in Worcester

Alfredo Martello of Worcester admitted in the United States District Court today before Judge Aldrich and a jury that he was the maker of the counterfeit money and owner of the tools found in the house of Rocco Isacoussi of Worcester, who, with his wife, Maria, and Martello, are charged with conspiracy and making and passing counterfeit money.

Martello, who has pleaded guilty to both indictments, in which he was joined with the three defendants on trial, stated to the court that he made the molds and trade the counterfeit money, and that he never told any of the defendants that he was engaged in that kind of work. He testified that part of the work was done in his room in the Isacoussi house and part of it in the woods nearby.

On being cross-examined by Assistant United States Attorney Daniel A. Shea, Martello said that he had made about $150 in dimes, quarters and half dollars, and that he passed some of the coins in New Britain, Ct., where he was placed under arrest. Martello admitted being sentenced in the East Cambridge Court in 1917 to six months for breaking and entering.

Mrs. Isacoussi, on testifying in her own behalf, stated that when the officers came to search her house she told them to go ahead, and offered to assist them.

MRS. COLLINS GOES FREE IN BARNEY CASE

hat which has figured in the care; also to identifying Barney at Charles Street Jail.

DENIAL FROM DAILEY.

In rebuttal the government offered Captain Dailey of Hanover street police station. He opened with denial of a statement by Captain Patrick Hurley of the Cambridge police that Hurley had told him about anyone having seen Barney in Cambridge on the night he was arrested. He also related incidents attendant on his visit to the Washington street hat store to interview Clerk Dewsnap regarding his identification of Marion O'Brien as the person who bought the hat.

W. W. Dow, private investigator, testified in rebuttal for the government that on the night of May 17 he saw Murphy on Commonwealth avenue outside Mrs. Ashenden's apartments. He and his employer, William A. Morgan, folowed the lawyer to a car and to his home in Cambridge.

Mr. Dow denied that he had ever posed as a police officer in questioning Jahue Easter Brown, janitor at No. 1412 Commonwealth avenue, where Mrs. Ashenden had an apartment. He also denied that on May 27 he pointed out the accused lawyer to Mrs. Celia Bridger and Alice Kelley, private detectives who identified Murphy for the government.

"I took them to the Superior Criminal Court hearing to get them to identify Murphy satisfactorily for me," declared Dow.

The case was heard by Judge Thomas H. Connelly. Attorney Murphy occupied most of the morning putting in his own defence, to the exclusion of witnesses for Mrs. Marion O'Brien, Mrs. Lillian Ashenden and Mrs. Mary E. Collins, the other defendants.

RILEY DEFENCE WITNESS.

The principal witness for the defence was John A. Riley, proprietor of a hat store in Cambridge. One of Mr. Riley's clerks had testified last week that on May 20 or 21 Marion O'Brien, sweetheart of Barney, the alleged murderer, bought a man's hat in the store. Today Mr. Riley said that the hat was bought by a man, whom he had yesterday identified at the Charles Street Jail as Barney.

John H. Doherty suported Riley's story of his identification of Barney at the jail.

The first witness introduced by Attorney Francis Juggins in Mr. Murphy's defence was Henry C. Mildram, civil engineer. Mr. Mildram testified as to distances in the apartment house at No. 1412 Commonwealth avenue, occupied by Mrs. Ashenden. This testimony was designed to meet that of women detectives who testified last week as to overhearing telephone conversations in the Ashenden apartments. The detectives had maintained that their suits was neat enough to permit this.

CAPTAIN ON STAND.

William E. Rowe testified that he saw Attorney Murphy at 8 o'clock on the night of May 20, and that Murphy then took a car.

Timothy E. Murphy, a special officer at the Gordon Theatre, testified that on May 21, shortly before he was recaptured, a man believed to be Barney was in his theatre, but was not recognized until he had left.

Police Captain Patrick J. Hurley of the Cambridge department testified that he knew Attorney Murphy for ten years and gave evidence as to the accused lawyer's activity last Winter in inducing Barney to return from New York and surrender himself for trial on the charge of murdering Patrolman Charles Deininger.

Dr. Jeremiah Green of Cambridge testified that on May 10, when it had been said by government witnesses Mr. Murphy was in the Ashenden apartment in Commonwealth avenue, the lawyer was sick and could not have been there.

The Republicans are anxious to write on the statute books a tariff measure to supplant the Underwood-Simmons act, which has been in effect since shortly after the Democrats gained control of Congress eight years ago. The bill under consideration provides for protection through import duties and a strict licensing system to regulate imports.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY H. G. WELLS MAKING OPENING ADDRESS IN TRIAL OF MRS. BESSIE MAY (SKEELS) LUNDGREN

Propped against pillows at the left, Mrs. Bessie May (Skeels) Lundgren hears District Attorney Henry G. Wells, extreme right, accuse her of murder in his opening address. Mrs. Lundgren's counsel, left to right, are Daniel J. Daley, J. Joseph Carraher and John J. Quinn utes the smile that has always been the characteristic of the "sunshine nurse" rewarded his efforts. She opened her eyes again.

NURSE WINSLOW DESCRIBES DEATH OF FLORENCE GAY

A bunch of fragrant roses lay across her knees, and as she lifted them now and again to her face they only accentuated the waxen pallor of both cheeks and hand.

Miss Winslow, the opening witness, said she was a "practical" nurse with experience in a private hospital. She came into the case the morning of December 12, 1917, between 5 and 6 o'clock. She said that Mrs. Edith McLanlin Luce of Winchester engaged her and that she talked to Dr. Abbott in the parlor of the home before going on the case.

"Miss Gay was very sick when I arrived," she said. "She came out of the doze that she was in when I arrived shortly before noon. During the evening she had nausea, beginning at 8:30 and later she was delirious. She was restless, wanted to get out of bed, and was reaching for things."

Dr. George Burgess Magrath, medical examiner of Suffolk County, and Dr. William T. Boos, toxicologist, two of the State's experts, arrived today at the courthouse.

Miss Winslow said that Miss Gay took a very little nourishment through the night, and that she gave it to her. This nourishment, the witness said, was all prepared, and Mrs. Skeels showed her where to get it, she said.

The witness said that she left the room on Thursday, December 13, at 2:30 o'clock, and that Miss Gay was comfortable then. "I think she was unconscious," she said. "I returned to the room at 4:30 o'clock, and Miss Gay died soon after that."

Q.—Did you give Miss Gay anything while you were there? A.—I gave her medicine.

DESCRIBES LAST HOUR.

Miss Winslow described the appearance of Miss Gay by saying that she had a rash like prickly heat on her arms, chest and neck.

Cross-examined by Attorney Daley, the witness said that she could not recall whether there was a rash on the patient's face or not. It was a kind of eczema, she said.

The food that she gave the patient she said was lamb broth and malted milk. She said she got them in the pantry and warmed them.

Q.—So you prepared the lamb broth and the malted milk yourself? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did she show any signs of distress after you gave her the food? A.—She had the nausea early in the evening. I cannot recall that she had any after feeding.

Q.—You thought your patient was a pretty sick woman, didn't you? A.—Yes, I did.

Q.—When you found your patient so much worse, who did you see? A.—Mrs. Luce was in the sick room. I do not recall where Mrs. Skeels was.

Q.—What did you do for her? A.—I had no chance to do anything for her. I did not have my hat off when she gave the death signal.

Q.—Did you help Mrs. Skeels prepare Miss Gay's body after death? A.—I did.

Q.—What was the occasion of calling Mrs. Luce into the room? A.—We were looking for Miss Gay's switch and we found a large cameo pin in the drawer. Mrs. Skeels called Mrs. Luce.

The witness said that she told Dr. Abbott all of the symptoms that she observed in Miss Gay. Dr. Abbott gave the patient brown pills, she said. After the death of Miss Gay the nurse remained in the Gay home until Sunday.

Miss Winslow said that she had discussed the case only with State officers, with Attorney Daley and men from his office and with Attorney-General Attwill. She had been summoned to the latter's office in the State House for two conferences.

The witness said that Dr. Abbott had told her that he did "not think there was any hope for Miss Gay," but that he did not say that she was going to die.

Re-cross-examination by Mr. Daley resulted in a statement by Miss Winslow that her talk with Dr. Abbott took place in the morning, and that he told her then that Miss Gay would not live through the day.

The witness said that she was employed by Mrs. Luce and that she was taking her orders from Mrs. Luce. She could not remember who told her to go out the afternoon that Miss Gay died.

Mrs. Horage Eaton of Andover, who worked in the Gay homestead caring for the rooms occupied by the Abbott Academy students, was the next witness.

She worked every morning and two days a week, and went to work there after Miss Gay was very ill.

She saw her only once, when Miss Gay called her in to make some arrangements. She had nothing to do with the preparation of any food, she said.

Cross-examined by Mr. Daley:

"Do you remember one time feeding ice cream to Miss Gay?"

"Yes, I do remember that. Mrs. Skeels asked me to take it upstairs; she was busy with her patient."

Miss Mary Jane Black of Pawtucket, R. I., the next witness, said she took care of Mrs. Gay in Andover in 1915 and 1916. She identified a blue and white cotton skirt as one that she had seen in the Gay home. The laundry mark of "100" was also identified by the witness.

Miss Black identified a tall glass vase as one that "Mrs. Gay got for a present," and said it was on the mantel in the room downstairs. Miss Black said that the condition of Miss Gay's health was good when she arrived there. "She was a hearty eater," she added.

Pictures with broken frames, towels, half made dresses, linen glass vases, silver and china, as well as a revolver in a broken candy box, bureau scarfs and table covers, taken from the room of Mrs. Skeels on a search warrant by the Andover police were included in the exhibit brought by two deputies into court.

Miss Black identified many of them as articles she had seen in the Andover home of the Gays.

Cross-examined by Attorney Daley, Miss Black said that she had never seen any case like the one she identified as having been in the Gay house, that there were no markings to identify it.

A picture of "Sir Galahad," she said, that she had taken down to dust, and a second picture, "The Winged Trumpeter," had been in Miss Gay's bedroom. She persisted in her identification of a tablecloth as one that belonged to Mrs. Gay and that she had seen it four years ago.

MISS GAY'S COUSIN A WITNESS.

"Is this spread one that you saw in the Gay home?" queried the lawyer. "The one I remember had a hole in it."

Asked to find the hole, the witness failed to do so. She said there were two such spreads and this might be the second one.

A pair of gloves, a revolver she failed to identify, but the syrup pitcher, cracker jar and a coffee canister she had seen there. Mrs. Edith McLanlin Luce was then called.

There was a stir in the court room as Mrs. Luce, the woman whose name has been brought into the trial so many times, took the stand. She said she was a cousin of Miss Gay and that she visited there on an average of once in four or five weeks.

Mrs. Luce said that Miss Gay was taken sick November 3, 1917, and that then she visited there two or three times a week. She knew Mrs. Skeels when she came to care for her aunt, Mrs. Carter, who was a sister of Mrs. Gay.

"When Miss Gay was taken ill," the witness said, "she acted as one who was very, very tired, as if she had overworked. The first Saturday in December she seemed very well and she talked constantly of changes she planned to make when she got well. When I saw her again, on December 6, she was much worse. I was alarmed and I talked to Dr. Abbott about her.

Q.—As a result of that conversation what did you do? A.—On December 8 I went to the Adams Nervine to see about her admission there. I also talked to Mr. Gay over the phone.

HAD SORE THROAT AND NAUSEA.

Q.—Did you talk to the defendant about removing Miss Gay from the house? A.—Yes. I said in substance that Miss Gay's condition was such as to need constant attention, and as Mrs. Skee's time was divided between Mrs. Gay and Miss Gay I thought it wise to have her go to some hospital where she could have it.

Q.—What were Miss Gay's symptoms? A.—She was very weak, complained of a very sore throat and had nausea.

Q.—What was the next time after December 6 that you visited the house? A.—On December 13, the latter part of the morning.

Q.—How did you go in? A.—I went in the back hall.

Q.—Did you see the defendant, and where? A.—I saw Mrs. Skeels coming down the back stairs. She had a cup in her hand, and she went into the kitchen.

Q.—What did she say? A.—She said that Miss Gay said the peppermint tea was too strong, and she was going to make it weaker for her.

Q.—Did she say anything to indicate that Miss Gay was worse than she was on December 6? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—Did she say she was better? A.—No, sir.

Q.—While you were there did anything occur to attract your attention to any other part of the house? A.—We heard a fall upstairs and we went up as quickly as we could.

Ensign Beck Admits Helping Wealthy "Slackers"

New York, June 11.—Ensign Paul Beck, being tried by court-martial here on the charge of using influence to get "slackers" into soft berths in the naval reserve in order to dodge the draft, changed his plea to guilty after the introduction of damning evidence and appealed for clemency.

Beck promised to disclose the names of confederates in the alleged plot. He was charged with fifteen instances of misconduct and was liable to a fifteen-year sentence in a military prison on each count, if convicted.

Beck is alleged to have specialized in the sons of rich fathers, who desired assignments as "shore sailors," the majority of those he inducted into service discharging their duties from suites in the Biltmore and other expensive hotels.

These "assignments," according to the prosecution, were preceded by costly dinners in which the candidates for naval berths ashore paid the checks. One of Beck's alleged confederates, James Ellert, is charged with receiving $20,000 from the relatives of these draft dodgers, while another, Chief Boatswain's Mate Lloyd G. Casey, has pleaded guilty to accepting $2,400 for his influence.

RICH HUSBAND'S LOVE SPURNED BY YOUNG WIFE

Referee Favors Annulment of Marriage for Man Who Wanted Home With Child

Babies are "dirty, smelly, messy things" in the opinion of Mrs. Florence Plumb Conabeer, the "spiritual" wife of John Sherwill Conabeer, rich young coal dealer of Greenwich, Ct., and New York city, according to testimony of witnesses for the husband in his suit for annulment of the Conabeer marriage of four years ago.

Referee Charles L. Hoffman has filed with Justice Giegerich of the New York Supreme Court a recommendation that Conabeer's plea for annulment be granted.

Conabeer testified that he was unable to overcome the invincible modesty of his wife. He said she remained marble-hearted against his warmest love-making, insisting he was trying "to put one over on her," when he spoke about a happy home with children in it. He said:

"There were times when I told her I could not continue to live with her unless we led a natural, normal life. I told her I had nothing in life to live for. Whenever I started such a conversation she would fly up in the air. She was of a nervous temperament and would get hysterical. She left my house twice to go home to her mother.

"It wasn't a question of telling her how much I loved him. Love is expressed by what a person does and the way a person acts. I did everything a person could do for any person to make her love me. I gave her money for luxuries and amusements, watches, diamonds, paintings, vacations.

"But when I spoke about the future and my desire to have a child she threw herself on the floor. She took off her jewelry and threw it on the floor and said men were nothing but animals and that no man was fit to live with.

"LEGALIZED LICENSE."

"My wife said God was only the creator and if man attempted to create he was usurping God's powers. She put her own interpretation on religion. She said the cause of all sin, sickness and suffering was the Adam dream and the belief in the material. When very angry she said marriage was legalized license and that the more children people had the more common they became."

From March, 1914, when they were married, to April, 1918, when they parted, Conabeer swore that his wife repulsed every attempt he made to demonstrate his affection. Not once, he said, did she respond.

Mrs. Conabeer denied that this was so. She admitted she "feared" "motherhood," but said it was only in her anger that she spoke of men as "beasts and animals." The referee, however, accepted the case presented by Attorney Charles A. Oberwager for Conabeer and recommended that the marriage be declared void.

TALKED BABIES TOO MUCH.

Mrs. Edna G. Mayer, neighbor of the Conabeers, testified:

"Mrs. Conabeer told me she couldn't do anything with her husband any more, he talked about babies so much. She said she used to be able to get him out of that mood, but lately she couldn't do anything with him.

"I said to Mrs. Conabeer: 'You're not always going to be a blushing bride, are you? You're going to be one of us and join our circle.' She said: 'Nothing doing, not for me.' Mrs. Conabeer told me she had no emotion for married life. She said: 'I don't want any children. I don't want to be tied down. I want to be free and go as I please. I could not stand the messy things anyway.' She said sex was just an idea of the brain."

Hard Luck Follows Ship 6 Months on Way to Brazil

The auxiliary three-masted schooner Geneva Kathleen, which for six months has been trying to reach Santos, Brazil, is facing a hard streak of ill-luck. She sailed from here December 18 for Norfolk under charter to load a cargo of coal for Santos and from that port was to have brought back a full shipment of coffee. Hardly had she cleared Boston bay when the illness of the captain forced her to turn about to land him, and when she again put to sea the mate was in command. The schooner stranded on Cobbs Island off the Virginia coast and for a time it seemed as if she would be a total wreck. Government vessels succeeded in getting her into deep water without much damage.

Filled with coal, she sailed from Norfolk April 14 for the Brazilian port. Advices received here yesterday state she put into Barbadoes, British West Indies, with steering gear damaged.

While he was scattering literature from an altitude of 1,000 feet his machine went into a tail spin. It struck on a sidewalk fifteen feet from three children and immediately burst into flames. Bricker was burned to death.

DENIES WRIT OF PROTECTION TO MRS. GLADDING

Court Refuses Plea of Woman Who Faces Providence Judge Tomorrow

Providence, June 11.—Judge Barrows of the Superior Court today denied a petition for a writ of protection asked for by Mrs. Charlotte L. Gladding, wife of a wealthy oyster grower, who with Richard D. Williams was arrested in a local lodging house some time ago.

Mrs. Gladding, whose hearing takes place tomorrow, asked for the writ on the ground that she feared arrest under a suit which Mrs. Williams has filed or is about to file charging alienation of her husband's affections.

This information was given the American by Attorney William H. McSoley, counsel for Mrs. Williams and Theodore O. Gladding.

According to Attorney McSoley, Mrs. Gladding alleges she is now residing in Portsmouth, N. H., but was formerly a resident of Providence, where she is under arrest in a case now pending in the Sixth Judicial Court on a statutory charge. The woman, now at liberty on bail, will appear in the local court tomorrow at 9 a. m. She is making her home with her parents in Portsmouth.

In her petition for a writ, Mrs. Gladding stated, according to Attorney McSoley, that "upon information and belief, Bertha E. L. Williams, wife of Richard D. Williams, was about to commence or already had commenced action for alienation of the affections of her husband and has already or is about to sue out a writ of arrest for the petitioner when she appears in Rhode Island."

The woman therefore asked for a writ of protection to exempt her from arrest during the hearing and for a reasonable length of time thereafter. In order to make the petition legal Mrs. Gladding came down to the Rhode Island line, where, Attorney McSoley stated, her counsel obtained her signature to the papers and took her affidavit.

Despite the fact that such a petition is most unusual, Judge Barrows denied it on the ground that the woman was exempt from arrest under the statutes during the time of the hearing.

The damaged plane is virtually beyond repair.

UNIONS SUED BY THE PEOPLE FOR STRIKES

Action for $2,035,000 Filed at Pittsburgh; Allege Inconvenience

Pittsburgh, June 11.—Unions of street car employes which recently conducted a strike here have been sued for $2,035,000 damages by the people of this city. The people allege inconvenience and loss of money as a result of the strike.

A. E. Anderson is attorney for the people and alleges that in his individual case his money losses as a result of the strike aggregated 78 cents. This represents the difference between jitney and railroad fares.

The suit is believed to be the first of its kind. Not only are the union members sued for property losses incurred as a direct result of the picketing, but for all the indirect money losses suffered by the citizens.

Receivers of the Pittsburgh Railways Company are sued as party defendants, along with the conductors and motormen. The actions of the strikers were unlawful, it is alleged, and invaded the rights of the public in violation of the constitutions of the United States and the State of Pennsylvania. A conspiracy in restraint of trade is alleged.

Some of the strikers, according to Attorney Anderson, did not fully appreciate the importance of their acts, and they will be given a chance to exonerate themselves.

If the unions are convicted, the sum sued for will be raised by assessment on the members.

Simple Home Remedy for Wrinkled Faces

Thousands of the fair sex are spending fortunes in frantic efforts to remove the signs of premature age from their faces. Such women willingly pay almost any amount of money for worthless wrinkle removers, of which there are many.

If they only knew it, the most effective remedy imaginable is a simple, harmless face wash which can be made up at home in less than a minute. They have only to get an ounce of powdered saxolite and half a pint of witch hazel at the drug store and mix the two. Apply this daily for a while as a refreshing lotion. The effect is almost magical. Even after the first treatment a marked improvement is noticed and the face has a smug, firm feeling that is most pleasing.—Advertisement.

PICKETS START ON PATROL NEAR WIRE OFFICES

I. Bramberg, president of Boston Local No. 4, Commercial Telegraphers' Union, accused the Western Union of intimidation.

He declared that employes of the Postal Telegraph Company were ready to walk out and were only waiting for someone in authority from the union organization to call them out. He delegated a committee of pickets to see telegraphers working for the Postal and call them out.

Mr. Bramberg said that the principle today was whether a man or a woman in industry had the right to belong to a trade union. "This is the principle we are fighting—to do away with the unjust discrimination against union men and women," he declared. He urged the strikers to stick together despite the seemingly small minority in this city at the present time, and he said they were supported through the nation. As an example he cited the recent Boston telephone strike, and what it accomplished through solidarity.

It was voted to establish pickets at Postal and Western Union offices. The pickets are to work in two-hour relays, with this watch kept up from 6.55 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Plans were outlined to induce employes now working to answer the general strike call.

General Manager Charles A. Crane of the Western Union said today:

"So far as the Western Union in Boston is concerned, there is no telegraph strike. We have more operators working today than yesterday.

"In the entire metropolitan district there are only 15 persons out and some of these are clerks. There is no grievance against the Western Union on the part of the operators so far as I know. I do not know what they are striking for and I doubt if they do."

Mr. Crane invited a representative of the American to enter the main operating room of the company at No. 189 Congress street to see for himself how much the company was crippled by the strike.

The big room clattered with hundreds of busy instruments. Every desk and key was occupied, and the board on the wall which indicates the quality of the service with different cities showed white wafers, indicating that service was normal.

In the single instances of New York, Philadelphia and Montreal green and orange wafers showed, indicating that in the first two named cities the service was ten minutes behind normal, and in the last twenty minutes late. This delay was explained as being due to a press of business and not to strike conditions.

Operators at the Western Union main office said that the strike is due to an attempt on the part of commercial operators to dissatisfy Western Union men with their jobs, but that the attempt is not successful.

First General Strike of Operators Since 1907 May Affect Over 70,000

Chicago, June 11.—The first general strike of telegraph operators in the United States since 1907 began at 8 a. m. today. Responding to the call of S. J. Konenkamp, international president of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, Western Union and Postal operators throughout the entire nation quit their keys.

Practically the entire operating force of the Postal Telegraph Company went on strike here this morning, according to reports, shortly after 7 o'clock. At the Western Union offices the percentage of men going on strike was smaller than at the Postal, although enough operators walked out, it was reported, to handicap seriously the operating department of the company.

Konenkamp issued a statement today, saying the full effect of the strike probably will not be known for several days.

"The strike will increase in force throughout the week," he said. "The telegraph workers have been forced to make a test of strength because no other avenue of adjustment is open to them. It is only when the strength lies on the side of the workers that arbitration is pointed to as the way out. We are confident the result will be in our favor."

Konenkamp said it was impossible for him to estimate now the number of men out, but he treated with ridicule reports that the Western Union is "running 100 per cent."

WALK OUT EARLY.

Although the strike was set for 8 o'clock this morning the night forces of the Western Union and Postal companies at Omaha, Neb., quit their posts at midnight. Practically every employe of the night shift, both men and women, walked out, according to reports reaching here.

Besides the telegraph systems of the Western Union and Postal, the strike will include the cables, union officials asserting they hope in this way to bring the trouble directly to the attention of President Wilson. The American Telegraph & Telephone Company, union officials state, also will be affected.

Union members in Chicago, it has been stated, will adopt a plan of peaceful picketing.

Although no strike of railroad telegraphers has been called, it is understood that the railroad union has instructed its members to refuse to handle commercial messages.

TEST OF STRENGTH.

The walkout this morning is regarded by union officials as a test of strength. If sufficient operators join in the strike to seriously cripple the telegraph companies, the operators believe it will demonstrate the power of their organization and ultimately force recognition of their organization and ultimately force recognition of their union, which is the principal issue of the controversy.

For the present, press association and broker operators are not involved in the strike, although President Konenkamp had intimated that broker men may be called out later. The International News Service, Universal Service and United Press Associations, it is stated, are operating under contract with their operators and hence are not affected.

Mr. Konenkamp estimates that fully 60,000 are out.

N. E. Phone Workers Exempt From Joining Nation-Wide Strike Scheduled Monday

New England telephone operators will not join the nation-wide strike which takes place on Monday morning of next week by order of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

"New England will be exempt because of the satisfactory agreement secured a month or so ago, when the telephone workers in this locality went on strike for higher wages, etc.," said Miss Julia S. O'Connor, head of the telephone operators' department of the brotherhood.

"I have just returned from San Francisco and other parts of the West and shall leave for Atlantic City today to attend the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor."

"Don't Be a Scab" Signs Carried by Pickets at New York Wire Offices

New York, June 11.—Union telegraph operators left their keys at Western Union offices all over New York as the nation-wide wire strike went into effect today, and it was reported that the Postal system was similarly affected.

Union pickets, wearing placards reading "Don't be a scab," patrolled in front of the main offices and branches of the telegraph companies. A number of men, understood to be private detectives hired by the company, were also on patrol.

Pickets appeared before the main office of the Postal at No. 253 Broadway two hours before the strike order became effective.

People Constipated and Don't Know It!

It seems odd, but it is true, that you may be constipated and not know it.

You can see why it is. Take a glass and pour in water until full. If you keep on pouring in water after the glass is full, it will run over, but the glass stays full.

Just so with your bowels; they get full of waste matter, and then they pass off or expel from the body only about the same amount that goes into it in the form of food.

So you may have a movement of the bowels every day and yet there will remain waste matter that ought to be removed.

A fine prescription for this is put up and sold under the name of Dr. True's Elixir. Doctors and druggists use it in their own families. Costs but little and brings health to man, woman and children. Sweet and pleasant tasting. Works gently. Children like it. Remember the name, Dr. True's Elixir.

All Commercial Wire Operators of Union Quit Their Keys in Washington

Washington, June 11.—Practically all commercial telegraphers in Washington who are members of the union responded to the strike call today. At the Postal Telegraph offices practically the entire force walked out. Officials of the company declined to say, however, how many were on strike. "Our regular force is at work," was the statement issued from the Western Union offices. However, there were crowds of telegraphers on the sidewalk outside the building, and these asserted that all of the union members and a great many non-union men were out.

MEXICANS FLEE IN TERROR TO TEXAS

Ten Thousand in Rush to El Paso as Villa Nears Juarez

El Paso, Tex., June 11.—With Villa troops reported at Tierra Blanca, fifteen miles south of Juarez, last night, the exodus of panic-stricken Mexicans from Juarez began with a rush today. It was estimated that 10,000 persons had crossed into El Paso.

Custom guards detained some of the refugees for investigation but no hindrance was offered to the majority.

Juarez has taken on the aspect of a besieged city. Few persons other than soldiers are on the streets. Well-informed Mexicans declare that General Angeles was "not more than fifteen miles from the city," although officials deny this.

REBELS IN GUADALOUPE.

Guadaloupe, opposite Fabens, Tex., thirty miles east of El Paso, was occupied by the rebels last night and two forces, one under the command of General Angeles and the other headed by Villa, are reported to be marching from that point upon Juarez.

Mexican government funds from Juarez were brought across the border.

Opinion is growing in Juarez and El Paso that Angeles will take Juarez in order to find out definitely how he stands with the United States.

CHIHUAHUA HOLDING OUT.

Villa sympathizers practically concede that Villa has not taken Chihuahua City as was reported last week. There were no trains running into Juarez and communication by wire is still cut off.

Villa has been destroying Mexican railroads from Chihuahua City north together with water tanks since June 2 and is still proceeding north.

CLERK ALLEN OF U.S. COURT TO WED NEW YORK GIRL

Employes at the Federal Building were today interested to learn of the announcement by Dr. and Mrs. Frank Knight Sanders of New York of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Sanders, to James F. Allen, clerk of the United States District Court. Miss Sanders is a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College, '12, and was formerly secretary of the Y. W. C. A. of Yonkers, N. Y. She is at present girls' work secretary of the Northeastern Field, National Board of the Y. W. C. A. Mr. Allen is a son of the late J. Sidney Allen of Brockton. He is a graduate of Brown and of Harvard Law School and was formerly Assistant United States Attorney for Massachusetts.

KNOX WANTS TREATY WITHOUT LEAGUE PLAN

Washington, June 11.—Formal notice to the peace conference and to the world that the United States wants peace but desires no membership in the League of Nations is contained in a resolution which Senator Knox of Pennsylvania introduced in the Senate.

The resolution calls upon the peace conference to submit a treaty of peace without any provisions for the establishment of a League of Nations.

SPENCER WOOLEN MILL GIVES WORKERS RAISE

Spencer, June 11.—An increase in wages of 10 per cent. was granted to the employes at the Bigwood Woolen Company mill, to take effect at once, according to announcement made by David Bigwood, manager and treasurer of the concern. This is the fourth raise granted the help at the mill in a little over a year.

CALL ON STATE BOARD TO END GAS STRIKE

Worcester Hospitals Forced to Erect Dismantled Coal Stoves in Emergency

Worcester, June 11.—A concerted effort is being made to settle the strike of workers in the plant of the Worcester Gas Light Company who walked out, leaving the city today with but twenty hours' supply of gas in the pipes and mains.

Officials of the company claim that the walkout was without a minute's notice, while labor leaders claim that a strike committee was authorized to call a strike without notice if the company did not agree to their demands for increased pay and an eight-hour day.

The State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation has been appealed to by Acting Mayor Fred A. Minor, and it is hoped that that body will act at once.

Local hospitals and hotels are today making hurried plans to change their cooking plants from gas to coal or oil. Most of these plants use gas exclusively during the warm months and have dismantled their other ovens and stoves.

The company in reply to demands made by the strikers agrees to extend the practice of the eight-hour day to all branches of its service with no reduction in wages, compromises on the demand for double time on Sundays and holidays by agreeing to allow half a day's bonus each week for each employe who works seven days a week.

There are about 240 men now out on strike.

PAINTER, ASLEEP IN SHOP, BADLY BURNED

Charles W. Phelps, who sleeps in the paint shop at No. 2389 Washington street, where he is employed as a painter, is dying at the Relief Hospital from severe burns which he received when the shop caught fire.

He was found unconscious on the floor by a fireman and rushed to the City Hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list. The damage was estimated at $200 by the police.

REPORT PLENTY OF WORK IN CONNECTICUT

Hartford, June 11.—There is plenty of work in Connecticut, according to reports from fourteen Community Labor Boards to David Elder, Federal director of the United States Employment Service. The total unemployed is 6,775, a drop from 8,250 the past week and from 29,500 on April 1. There is a scarcity of common laborers in the construction trades.

FIFTY YEARS HOTEL MAN. C. D. WHITFORD IS DEAD

Oneco, Ct., June 11.—Clark D. Whitford, seventy-eight, for more than fifty years hotel proprietor, died suddenly here today. Whitford had been active in Republican politics and had held many town and county offices. He was also engaged in the grain business.

Sardine Industry's Sorry Plight Laid to Prohibition

Bangor, June 11.—Mark another wreck up to prohibition. This time it's the lowly and humble sardine, the poor man's delight, the desired of the thirst-quencher.

Maine's sardine industry is threatened. The sardine factories are not opening up this season because of prohibition. In the big cities, when the cheering cup was having its day, the barrooms supplied their customers with a lunch to go with beer, wine or gin, and nothing went so well with any of the appetizers as the festive sardine. But prohibition came and the barrooms went, or are on their way. No sardines are wanted.

VIMY PLANE MAY START FLIGHT ACROSS TODAY

St. John's, N. F., June 11.—The Vickers-Vimy aeroplane will be ready today as scheduled for the trans-Atlantic flight, but a postponement may be compelled owing to the gasoline supply being unsatisfactory.

NEW BEDFORD BOY IS KILLED BY AUTO

New Bedford, June 11.—John Joseph, eight years old, was killed when he was run into by an auto driven by Abram Kroudvird. The boy dodged from behind another machine directly in front of that driven by Kroudvird.

100 QUARRY WORKERS AT FAIRHAVEN ON STRIKE

New Bedford, June 11.—One hundred employes at Bluestone Quarry Works, Fairhaven, are on strike for fifty cents an hour. A compromise offer of forty-five cents was offered, but not accepted.

Oh, My! Those Awful Corns! Lift Corns Off With Fingers

Doesn't hurt! Apply few drops then lift a sore, touchy corn or callus right off

Just ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. Apply a few drops upon a tender, aching corn and instantly that old bothersome corn stops hurting, then shortly you can lift it out, root and all, with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns, or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottom of feet shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. Ladies! Keep freezone handy on your dresser. Wonderful!

QUIZ SUSPECT AS SLAYER OF MRS. BROWN

Police Link James Black with "Boston Shorty" in Rockland Death Mystery

Rockland, Me., June 11.—County authorities and detectives are today interrogating the man held in Bangor awaiting trial for robbery, who is believed to be the much-wanted "Boston Shorty." At the time Mrs. Carolyn Belt Brown was murdered here several persons identified photos of "Boston Shorty" as being those of a man seen in Rockland about the time of the crime.

As a consequence detectives and police officials engaged in a State-search for "Boston Shorty." A Canadian soldier, suspected of being "Shorty," was arrested shortly after the brutal crime, but upon proving his identity was immediately released.

IDENTIFY FINGER PRINTS.

The man held in Bangor for robbery was known to the police as James Black. A comparison of finger prints taken at Portland and Bangor seem to have established Black's identity as "Boston Shorty." Detectives are investigating with a view to establishing Black's whereabouts between Christmas Day, 1918, and January 3.

The fact that "Boston Shorty" was released from the prison at Thomaston just prior to the murder of Mrs Brown, together with the identification of photographs of "Boston Shorty" by prominent citizens of this city as a man seen in Rockland about the time of the crime, led to the prolonged search for the notorious criminal. He was not located, however, at the time.

A DANGERONS PERSON.

Public interest in the murder of Mrs. Brown has again been aroused. The crime which for six months has bid fair to go down in the records as another of Maine's mysteries may be solved, in the belief of officials here.

Black was arrested in Bangor on February 27 on a charge of highway robbery. He was held in $2,000 for the September term of the Superior Court. He has been regarded as a dangerous prisoner and a special watch has been kept over him at all times. He is about fifty-five years old.

"Boston Shorty" is about the same age. A mark of identification is a deep scar across the left index finger. In Portland "Boston Shorty" was known as the "king of the underworld." According to the police he has a criminal record running back to 1893.

DEPARTMENT OF ART FOUNDED AT B. U.

Boston University has another new department, the second to be announced this week. An anonymous donor has founded a department of art and architecture in the School of Education of Boston University. The new department will go into operation at the opening of the university year in September. The courses will be open to all students in the School of Education, and to those students in the College of Liberal Arts and College of Business Administration, who secure the recommendation of the dean of their school. Only students will be received who have met the entrance requirements for collegiate standing in the School of Education.

Frank Chouteau Brown, who will give the courses in architecture, and Miss Blanche E. Colman, who will give those in art, are the members of the new faculty thus far selected.

Tassone pleaded guilty. Tassone attacked Martino with a knife and inflicted a neck wound one-half inch from the jugular vein.

PROBE DEATH OF TWO SOLDIERS AT DEVENS

Each Man Is Found with a Bullet in Head; One Case a Mystery

Camp Devens, June 11.—To ascertain the facts concerning the deaths of two soldiers reported to have committed suicide by shooting, two boards of inquiry appointed by Major-General McCain, began work today.

Corporal Joseph P. Mollohan, Machine Gun Company, 36th Infantry, was found sitting upright on a cot in his organization barracks, a bullet wound in his head and a revolver in his right hand. His nearest relative is George Mollohan, No. 638 Chelmsford street, Lowell.

The body of Private Bert M. Allen, A Battery, 55th Coast Artillery, was found in a dugout near the Shirley bridge, the back of his head shot away. Near him was an army rifle. He left a letter addressed to his aunt, Mrs. Sarah Ballou, Wallingford, Vt.

The authorities declared Mollohan had been complaining of rheumatism, which made him despondent. In the case of Allen it has not been definitely decided what ailed him, as no record was available as to how long he was noted missing from his organization. The nature of the letter he left to his aunt was not disclosed.

Private Louis Aborssiere, who served on the intelligence staff which worked at the Hotel Crillon, Paris, where the peace commission is quartered, was among the men who arrived here. He had a copy of the peace terms printed in French, which he declared he intends to keep as a souvenir.

Aborssiere is twenty-three years old and his home is in San Francisco. His duty at the hotel was to prevent news leaks. He had charge of more than 100 newspaper men who "covered" the meetings of the Peace Commission while he was there.

WILSON NOT SO POPULAR.

"All our men had to speak several languages," he said. "I was attached to the 18th Engineers before assignment with the intelligence office. I saw President Wilson frequently at the hotel. He was the idol of the French people, particularly the Socialistic element, but of late he is not so popular. This is due to the stand he took in making concessions to the Germans.

"The aristocratic French do not take kindly to his method of dealing with the Germans, because the latter treated them so fiercely during the war. He was given a tremendous ovation in which these same people joined, and now they are criticising him unmercifully.

"There were many demonstrations in front of the hotel, especially when Premier Orlando left the place in a huff, and these came from sympathizers, mostly French and Italians who were very demonstrative in their love for the Italian statesman.

EMBLEM UPSIDE DOWN.

"The French people took offense at the Americans wearing the fleur de lys insignia in Paris, on the grounds that it typified nobility. To appease their minds the authorities allowed us to continue wearing it by placing it upside down."

Private Aborssiere said he got a copy of the treaty from a newspaper man, before it was published in the French papers.

"Mine is a complete treaty," he added. "I prize it very highly."

Five thousand men of the 360th Infantry left here today for Houston, Tex., where they will take part in a parade, prior to being demobilized. The regiment is part of the 90th Division and was brigaded in the outfit commanded by Brigadier-General U. G. McAlexander, who will be on the reviewing line in Houston. He was formerly colonel of the 38th Infantry, which stopped two German divisions at the Marne. It was for this achievement that he received the title of brigadier-general.

NACE VERDICT SOON.

Private Paul L. Nace, tried by court-martial for being absent without leave, will know his fate by the end of the week. He is the soldier who alleged that he was shanghaied and kept a prisoner aboard a German U-boat until the armistice was signed. He was found not guilty by the trial board, but as Major-General McCain has to review the evidence, his decision is final. Nace was taken off kitchen police work in a casual company today and assigned to clerical duty.

Though a rumor is current here that the 36th Infantry will go moved to El Paso and other points in Texas, for duty along the Mexican border, no officer in authority cared to be quoted.

Two clothing merchants were arrested by the authorities for peddling their wares in camp.

Berlin to 'Protect' New Republic of Austria

Paris, June 11.—The first positive indication of a diplomatic junction between Germany and the republic of Austria was seen today in reports from Versailles that the Austrian peace delegation there has virtually placed its country's affairs under the "protection" of Berlin.

Dr. Karl Renner, the chief Austrian plenipotentiary, has asked Germany to protest against the [illegible] of the terms handed to Austria, the request being based upon the similarity of the German and Austrian aims."

What Has Happened in "Hearts of Three" So Far

FRANCIS MORGAN, a young New York millionaire, heavily interested in oil, meets Alvarez Torres, an adventurer, in the Wall Street office of Thomas Regan, who has an old score to pay off against Francis' father. Torres tells Francis he has the key to the hidden treasure of Sir Henry Morgan, the buccaneer. Francis goes to Central America in quest of the cache, Torres agreeing to follow. The young man meets Leoncia Solano, who mistakes him for her fiance, Henry Morgan. Francis meets Henry, who tells him he is suspected wrongfully of killing Leoncia's uncle. Francis goes back to the girl, explains and returns the engagement ring she had given back to Henry. Torres, who is at the Solano hacienda, sees Francis give Leoncia the ring and is infuriated. He contrives to have Francis arrested, and when he is freed, through the arrival of Henry, the latter is put in jail. Torres declares his love for Leoncia, but plots to have Henry hanged and Francis killed. Leoncia and the Solanos blow up the jail and Henry escapes with Franics, Leoncia and the Solanos to the schooner. Torres pursues. Fleeing to the Cordilleras, Francis and his party are captured by Torres and his retainers. Coming to the cavern of the Blind Brigand, the prisoners appeal to him for justice. Torres' co-worker, the Jefe of San Antonio, is matched against Francis in a unique contest. The Jefe loses. All are freed. A peon whom Francis has rescued offers to lead the Morgans to the hidden treasures of the Mayas.

The theme of this story was suggested to the author by Charles W. Goddard.

AT the signal to begin, the bandit with the bell tinkled it at extended arm's length and sprang swiftly aside. The man with the rifle lowered it as if to fire at the space just vacated and pretended to fire.

"You understand?" the leader demanded of Henry and the Jefe.

The former nodded, but the latter cried exultantly:

"Am I the Snake?"

"You are the Snake," affirmed the leader.

And the Jefe was eager for the rifle, making no further protests against the extra-territoriality of the proceedings.

"Are you going to try to get me?" Henry warned the Jefe.

"No, Senor Morgan. I am merely going to get you. I am one of the two best shots in Panama. I have two score and more medals. I can shoot with my eyes shut. I can shoot in the dark. I have often shot, and with precision, in the dark. Already may you count yourself a dead man."

Only one cartridge was put into the rifle, ere it was handed to the Jefe after he was blindfolded. Next, while Henry, equipped with the telltale bell, was stationed directly across the pit, the Jefe was faced to the wall and kept there while the brigands climbed out of the pit and drew the ladder after them. The leader, from above, spoke down:

"Listen carefully, Senor Snake, and make no move until you have heard. The Snake has but one shot. The Snake cannot tamper with his blindfold. If he so tampers it is our duty to see that he immediately dies. The Snake has no time limit. He may take the rest of the day, and all of the night, and the remainder of eternity ere he fires his one shot.

"As for the Bird, the one rule is that never must the bell leave his hand, and never may he stop the clapper of it from making the full noise intended of the clapper against the side of the bell. Should he do so, then will he immediately die. We are here above you, both of you Senors, rifles in hand, to see that you die the second you infract any of the rules. And now, God be with the right, proceed!"

The Jefe turned slowly about and listened, while Henry, essaying gingerly to move with the bell, caused it to tinkle. The rifle was quick to bear upon the sound, and to pursue it as Henry ran. With a quick shift he transferred the bell to the other extended hand and ran back in the opposite direction, the rifle sweeping after him in inexorable pursuit. But the Jefe was too cunning to risk all on a chance shot, and slowly advanced across the arena. Henry stood still, and the bell made no sound.

So unerringly had the Jefe's ear located the last silvery tinkle and so straightly did he walk despite his blindfold that he advanced just to the right of Henry and directly at the bell. With infinite caution, provoking no tinkle, Henry slightly raised his arm and permitted the Jefe's head to go under the bell with a bare inch of margin.

His rifle pointed and within a foot of the pit-wall, the Jefe halted in indecision, listening vainly for a moment, then made a further stride that collided the rifle muzzle with the wall. He whirled about and, with the rifle extended, like any blind man felt out the air space for his enemy. The muzzle would have touched Henry had he not sprung away on a noisy and zigzag course.

A Hopeless Task

In the centre of the pit he came to a frozen pause. The Jefe stalked past a yard to the side and collided with the opposite wall. He circled the wall, walking cat-footed, his rifle forever feeling out into the empty air.

Next he ventured across the pit. After several such crossings, during which the stationary bell gave him no clue, he adopted a clever method. Tossing his hat on the ground for the mark of his starting point, he crossed the edge of the pit on a shallow cord, extended the cord by a pace farther along the wall, and felt his way back along the new and longer cord.

Again against the wall, he verified the correctness of the parallelness of the two cords by pacing back to his hat. This time, with three paces along the wall from the hat, he initiated his third cord.

Thus he combed the area of the pit, and Henry saw that he could not escape such combing. Nor did he wait to be discovered. Tinkling the bell as he ran and zigzagging and exchanging it from one hand to the other he froze into immobility in a new place.

The Jefe repeated the laborious combing-out process, but Henry was not minded longer to prolong the tension. He waited till the rifle muzzle, breast high, was within half a dozen inches of his heart. Then he exploded into two simultaneous actions. He ducked lower than the rifle and yelled "Fire!" in stentorian command.

So startled, the Jefe pulled the trigger, and the bullet sped above Henry's head. From above, the sackcloth men applauded wildly. The Jefe tore off his blindfold and saw the smiling face of his foe.

"It is well. God has spoken," enounced the sackcloth leader, as he descended into the pit. "The man uninjured is innocent. Remains now to test the other man."

"Greetings, Jefe," Henry grinned. "You did try to get me. It's my turn now. Pass over that rifle."

But the Jefe, with a curse in his disappointment and rage, forgetting that the rifle had contained only one cartridge, thrust the muzzle against Henry's heart and pulled the trigger. The hammer fell with a metallic click.

"It is well," said the leader, taking away the rifle and recharging it. "Your conduct shall be reported. The test for you remains, yet must it appear that you are not acting like God's chosen man."

Like a beaten bull in the ring seeking a way to escape and gazing up at the amphitheatre of pitiless faces, so the Jefe looked up and saw only the rifles of the sackcloth men, the triumphing faces of Leoncia and Francis, the curious looks of his own gendarmes and blood-eager faces of the haciendados that were like the faces of any bullfight audience.

The shadowy smile drifted over the stern lips of the leader as he handed the rifle to Henry and started to blindfold him.

A Very Good Reason

"Why don't you make him face the wall until I'm ready?" the Jefe demanded, as the silver bell tinkled in his passion-convulsed hand.

"Because he is proven God's man," was the reply. "He has stood the test. Therefore he cannot do a treacherous deed. You now must stand the test of God. If you are true and honest no harm can befall you from the Snake. For such is God's way."

Far more successful as the hunter than as the hunted one did the Jefe prove. Across the pit from Henry he strove to stand motionless, but out of nervousness, as Henry's rifle swept around him, his hand trembled and the bell tinkled. The rifle came almost to rest and wavered ominously about the sound. In vain the Jefe tried to control his flesh and still the bell.

But the bell tinkled on, and in despair he flung it away and threw himself on the ground. But Henry, following the sound of his enemy's fall, lowered the rifle and pulled trigger. The Jefe yelled out in sharp pain and the bullet perforated his shoulder, rose to his feet, cursed, sprawled back on the ground and lay there cursing.

Again in the cave, with the mestiza beside him at his knee, the Blind Brigand gave judgment.

"This man who is wounded and who talks much of the law of the tierra caliente shall now learn Cordilleras law. By the test of the Snake and the Bird has he been proven guilty. For his life a ransom of ten thousand dollars gold shall be paid, or else shall he remain here, a hewer of wood and a carrier of water, for the remainder of the time God shall grant him to draw breath on earth. I have spoken, and I know that my voice is God's voice, and I know that God will not grant him long to draw breath if the ransom be not forthcoming."

A long silence obtained, during which even Henry, who could slay a foe in the heat of combat, advertised that such cold-blooded promise of murder was repugnant to him.

"The law is pitiless," said the Cruel Just One, and again silence fell.

"Let him die for want of ransom," spoke one of the haciendados. "He has proved a treacherous dog. Let him die a dog's death!"

"What say you?" the Blind Brigand asked solemnly. "What say you, peon of the many beatings, man new-born this day, half Maya that you are and lover of the woman wonderful? Shall this man die the dog's death for want of a ransom?"

"This man is a hard man," spoke the peon. "Yet is my heart strangely soft this day. Had I ten thousand gold I would pay his ransom myself. Yes, O Holy One and Just, and had I two hundred and fifty pesos, even would I pay off my debt to the haciendado of which I am absolved."

Worldly Wise

The old man's blind face lighted up to transfiguration.

"You, too, speak with God's voice this day, regenerate one," he approved.

But Francis, who had been scribbling hurriedly in his checkbook, handed a check, still wet with the ink, to the mestiza.

"I, too, speak," he said. "Let not the man die the dog's death he deserves, proven treacherous hound that he—"

The mestiza read the check aloud.

"It is not necessary to explain," the Blind Brigand shut Francis off. "I am a creature of reason and have not lived always in the Cordilleras. I was trained in business in Barcelona. I know the Chemical National Bank of New York, and through my agents have had dealings with it aforetime. The sum is for ten thousand dollars gold.

"This man who writes it has told the truth already this day. The check is good. Further, I know he will not stop payment. This man who thus pays the ransom of a foe is one of three things—a very good man, a fool, or a very rich man. Tell me. Tell me, O Man, is there a woman wonderful?"

And Francis, not daring to glance to right or left at Leoncia or Henry, but gazing straight before him on the Blind Brigand's face, answered because he felt he must so answer:

"Yes, O Cruel Just One, there is a woman wonderful."

CHAPTER XII.

AT the precise spot where they had been first blindfolded by the sackcloth man, the cavalcade halted. It was composed of a number of sackcloth men, of Leoncia, Henry and Francis, blindfolded and mounted on mules, and of the peon, blindfolded and on foot. Similarly escorted, the haciendados and the Jefe and Torres, with their gendarmes, had preceded by half an hour.

At permission given by the stern-faced leader, the captives, about to be released, removed their blindfolds.

"Seems I've been here before," Henry laughed, looking about and identifying the place.

"Seems the oil wells are still burning," Francis said, pointing out half the field of day that was eaten up by the black smoke pall. "Peon, look upon your handiwork. For a man who possesses nothing you are the biggest spender I ever met. I have heard of drunken oil kings lighting cigars with thousand-dollar bank notes, but here you are burning up a million dollars a minute."

"I am not a poor man," the peon boasted in proud mysteriousness.

"A millionaire in disguise," Henry twitted.

"Where do you deposit?" was Leoncia's contribution. "In the Chemical National Bank?"

The peon did not understand the allusions, but knew that he was being made fun of, and drew himself up in proud silence.

The Leader Speaks

The stern leader spoke:

"From this point you may now go your various ways. The Just One has so commanded. You, senors, will dismount and turn over to me your mules. As for the senorita, she may retain her mule as a present from the Just One, who would not care to be responsible for compelling a senorita to walk. The two senors, without hardship, may walk. Especially has the Just One recommended walking for the rich senor.

"The possession of riches, he advised, leads to too little walking. Too little walking leads to stoutness, and stoutness does not lead to the woman wonderful. Such is the wisdom of the Just One.

"Further, he has repeated his advice to the peon to remain in the mountains. In the mountains he will find this woman wonderful, and it is wisest that such woman be of his own race. The women of the tierra caliente are for the men of the tierra caliente. The Cordilleras women are for the Cordilleras men. God dislikes mixed breeds. The world was not intended for mixed breeds, but man has made for himself many inventions. Pure races interbred leads to impurity.

"Neither will oil nor water congenially intermingle. Since kind begets kind, only kind should mate. Such are the words of the Just One which I have repeated as commanded. And he has especially impressed upon me to add that he knows whereof he speaks, for he, too, has sinned in just such ways."

And Henry and Francis, of Anglo-Saxon stock, and Leoncia, of the Latin, knew perturbation and embarrassment as the vicarious judgment of the Blind Brigand sank home. Leoncia, with her splendid eyes of woman, would have appealed protest to either man she loved, had the other been absent; while both Henry and Francis would have voiced protest to Leoncia had either of them been alone with her. And yet, under it all, deep down, uncannily, was a sense of correctness of the Blind Brigand's thought. And heavily, on the heart of each, rested the burden of the conscious oppression of sin.

A crashing and scrambling in the brush diverted their train of thought, as descending the canyon slope on desperately slipping and sliding horses, appeared on the scene the haciendado with several followers. His greeting of the daughter of the Solanos was hidalgo-like and profound, and only less was the heartiness of his greeting to the two men for whom Enrico Solano had stood sponsor.

"Where is your noble father?" he asked Leoncia. "I have good news for him. In the week since I last saw you I have been sick with fever and encamped. But by swift messengers and favoring winds across Chiriqui Lagoon to Bocas del Torro I have used the government wireless—the Jefe of Bocas del Toro is my friend—and have communicated with the resident of Panama, who is my ancient comrade whose nose I rubbed as often in the dirt as did he mine in the boyhood days when we were schoolmates and cubicle-mates together at Colon.

"And the word has come back that all is well, that justice has miscarried in the court at San Antonio from the too great but none the less worthy zeal of the Jefe Politico, and that all is forgiven, pardoned, and forever legally and politically forgotten against all of the noble Solano family and their two noble Gringo friends.—"

A Triumphant Glance

Here the haciendado bowed low to Henry and Francis. And here, skulking behind Leoncia's mule, his eyes chanced to light on the peon, and, so lighting, his eyes blazed with triumph.

"Mother of God, Thou has not forgotten me!" he breathed fervently, then turned to the several friends who accompanied him. "There he is, the creature without reason or shame, who has fled his debt to me. Seize him! I shall put him on his back for a month from the beating he shall receive!"

So speaking the haciendado sprang around the rump of Leoncia's mule, and the peon, ducking under the mule's nose, would have won to the freedom of the jungle, had not another of the haciendados, with quick spur to his horse's side, cut him off and run him down. In a trice, used to such work, the haciendados had the luckless wight on his feet, his hands tied behind him, a lead-rope made fast around his neck.

In one voice Francis and Henry protested.

"Senors," the haciendado replied, "my respect and consideration and desire to serve you are as deep as for the noble Solano family under whose protection you are. Your safety and comfort are sacred to me. I will defend you from harm with my life. I am yours to command. My hacienda is yours, likewise all I possess. But this matter of this peon is entirely another matter. He is none of yours. He is my peon, in my debt, who has run away from my hacienda. You will understand and forgive me, I trust. This is a mere matter of property. He is my property."

Henry and Francis glanced at each other in mutual perplexity and indecision. It was the law of the land, as they thoroughly knew.

"The Cruel Just One did remit my debt, as all here will witness," the peon whispered.

The haciendado smiled and bowed low.

"But the peon contracted with me," he smiled. "And who is the Blind Brigand that his foolish law shall operate on my plantation and rob me of my rightful two hundred and fifty pesos?"

"He's right, Leoncia," Henry admitted.

"Then will I go back to the high Cordilleras," the peon asserted. "Oh, you men of the Cruel Just One, take me back to the Cordilleras."

But the stern leader shook his head.

"Here you were released. Our orders went no further. No further jurisdiction have we over you. We shall now bid and depart."

"Hold on!" Francis cried, pulling out his check book and beginning to write. "Wait a moment, I must settle for this peon now. Next, before you depart, I have a favor to ask of you."

Easy to Settle.

He passed the check to the haciendado, saying:

"I have allowed ten pesos for the exchange."

The haciendado glanced at the check, folded it away in his pocket and placed the end of the rope around the wretched creature's neck in Francis' hand.

"The peon is now yours," he said.

Francis looked at the rope and laughed.

"Behold! I now own a human chattel. Slave, you are mine, my property now, do you understand?"

"Yes, senor," the peon muttered humbly. "It seems when I became mad for the woman I gave up my freedom; for that God destined me always afterward to be the property of some men. The Cruel Just One is right. It is God's punishment for mating outside my race."

"You made a slave of yourself for what the world has always considered the best of all causes, a woman," Francis observed, cutting the thongs that bound the peon's hands. "And so, I make a present of you to yourself." So saying, he placed the neck-rope in the peon's hand. "Henceforth, lead yourself and put not that rope in any man's hand."

While the foregoing had been taking place, a lean old man, on foot, had noiselessly joined the circle. Maya Indian he was, pure blooded, with ribs that corrugated plainly through his parchment-like skin. Only a breech clout covered his nakedness. His unkempt hair hung in dirty-gray tangles about his face, which was high-cheeked and emaciated to cadaverousness.

Strings of muscles showed for his calves and biceps. A few scattered snags of teeth were visible between his withered lips. The hollows under his cheekbones were prodigious. While his eyes, beads of black, deep-sunk in their sockets, burned with the light of a patient in fever.

He slipped eel-like through the circle and clasped the peon in his skeleton-like arms.

"He is my father!" proclaimed the peon proudly. "Look at him! He is pure Maya, and he knows the secrets of the Mayas."

And while the two reunited ones talked endless explanations, Francis preferred his request to the sackcloth leader to find Enrico Solano and his two sons, wandering somewhere in the mountains and to tell them that they were free of all claims of the law and to return home.

"They have done no wrong!" the leader demanded.

"No, they have done no wrong," Francis assured him.

"Then it is well. I promise you to find them immediately, for we know the direction of their wandering, and to send them down to the coast to join you."

"And in the meantime shall you be my guest while you wait," the haciendado invited eagerly. "There is a freight schooner at anchor in Juchitan Inlet now off my plantation, and sailing for San Antonio. I can hold her until the noble Enrico and his sons come down from the Cordilleras."

"And Francis will pay the demurrage, of course," Henry interrupted with a sly sting that Leoncia caught, although it missed Francis, who cried joyously:

"Of course I will. And it proves my contention that a checkbook is pretty good to have anywhere."

To their surprise, when they had parted from the sackcloth men, the peon and his Indian father attached themselves to the Morgans, and journeyed down through the burning oil fields to the plantation which had been the scene of the peon's slavery. Both father and son were unremitting in their devotion, first of all to Francis, and next to Leoncia and Henry.

More than once they noted father and son in long and earnest conversations; and, after Enrico and his sons had arrived, when the party went down to the beach to board the waiting schooner, the peon and his Maya parent followed along. Francis essayed to say farewell to them on the beach, but the peon stated that the pair of them were likewise journeying on the schooner.

"I have told you that I was not a poor man," the peon explained after they had drawn the party aside from the waiting sailors. "This is true. The hidden treasure of the Mayas, which the conquistadores and the priests of the Inquisition could never find, is in my keeping. Or, to be very true, is in my father's keeping. He is the descendant, in the straight line, from the ancient high priest of the Mayas.

"He is the last high priest. He and I have talked much and long. And we are agreed that riches do not make life. You bought me for two hundred and fifty pesos, yet you made me free, gave me back to myself. The gift of a man's life is greater than all the treasure in the world. So we are agreed, my father and I.

"And so, since it is the way of Gringos and Spaniards to desire treasure, we will lead you to the Maya treasure, my father and I, my father knowing the way. And the way into the mountains begins from San Antonio and not from Juchitan."

"Does your father know the location of the treasure? Just where it is?" Henry demanded—with an aside to Francis that this was the very Maya treasure that had led him to abandon the quest for Morgan's gold on the Calf and to take to the mainland.

The peon shook his head.

"My father has never been to it. He was not interested in it, caring not for wealth for himself—father, bring forth the tale written in our ancient language which you alone of living Mayas can read."

From within his loin-cloth the old man drew forth a dirty and much-frayed canvas bag. Out of this he pulled what looked like a snarl of knotted strings. But the strings were twisted sennit of some fibrous forest bark, so ancient that they threatened to crumble as he handled them, while from under the touch and manipulation of his fingers a fine powder of decay arose. Muttering and mumbling prayers in the ancient Maya tongue, he held up the snarl of knots and bowed reverently before it ere he shook it out.

"The knot-writing, the lost written language of the Mayas," Henry breathed softly. "This is the real thing, if only the old geezer hasn't forgotten how to read it."

The Knots Read

All heads bent curiously toward it as it was handed to Francis. It was in the form of a crude tassel, composed of many thin, long strings. Not alone were the knots, and various kinds of knots, tied at irregular intervals in the strings, but the strings themselves were of varying length and diameter. He ran them through his fingers, mumbling and muttering.

"He reads!" cried the peon triumphantly. "All our old language is there in those knots, and he reads them as any man may read a book."

Bending closer to observe, Francis' and Leonica's hair touched, and in the thrill of the immediately broken contact their eyes met, producing the second thrill as they separated. But Henry, all eagerness, did not observe. He had eyes only for the mystic tassel.

"What d' you say, Francis?" he murmured. "It's big! It's big!"

Novel Written Just Before Famous Author's Death One of His Best

"But New York is beginning to call," Francis demurred. "Oh, not its people and its fun, but its business," he added hastily, as he sensed Leoncia's unuttered reproach and hurt. "Don't forget, I'm mixed up in Tampico Petroleum and the stock market, and I hate to think how many millions are involved."

"Oh, come!" Henry ejaculated. "The Maya treasure, if a tithe of what they say about its immensity be true, could be cut three ways between Enrico, you and me, and make each of us richer than you are now."

Still Francis was undecided, and while Enrico expanded on the authenticity of the treasure, Leoncia managed to query in an undertone in Francis' ear:

"Have you so soon tired of—treasure hunting?"

He looked at her keenly, and down at her engagement ring, as he answered in the same low tones:

"How can I stay longer in this country, loving you as I do, while you love Henry?"

It was the first time he had openly avowed his love, and Leoncia knew the swift surge of joy, followed by the no less swift surge of mantling shame that she, a woman who had always esteemed herself good, could love two men at the same time. She glanced at Henry as if to verify her heart, and her heart answered yes. As truly did she love Henry as she did Francis, and the emotion seemed similar where the two were similar, different where they were different.

"I'm afraid I'll have to connect up with the Angelique, most likely at Bocas del Toro, and get away," Francis told Henry. "You and Enrico can find the treasure and split it two ways."

But the peon, having heard, entered into quick speech with his father, and next with Henry.

"You hear what he says, Francis," the latter said, holding up the sacred tassel. "You got to go with us. It is you he feels grateful to for his son. He isn't giving the treasure to us, but to you. And if you don't go he won't read a knot of the writing."

But it was Leoncia, looking at Francis with quiet wistfulness of pleading, seeming all but to say, "Please, for my sake," who really caused Francis to reverse his decision.

CHAPTER XIII.

A WEEK later, out of San Antonio on a single day, three expeditions started for the Cordilleras. The first, mounted on mules, was composed of Henry, Francis, the peon and his ancient parent, and of several of the Solano peons, each leading a pack-mule burdened with supplies and outfit. Old Enrico Solano, at the last moment, had been prevented from accompanying the party because of the bursting open of an old wound received in the revolutionary fighting of his youth.

Up the main street of San Antonio the cavalcade proceeded, passing the jail, the wall of which Francis had dynamited and which was only even then being tardily rebuilt by the Jefe's prisoners. Torres, sauntering down the street, the latest wire from Regan tucked in his pocket, saw the Morgan outfit with surprise.

"Whither away, senors!"

So spontaneous that it might have been rehearsed, Francis pointed to the sky, Henry straight down at the earth, the peon to the right, and his father to the left. The curse from Torres at such impoliteness caused all to burst into laughter, in which the mule-peon joined as they rode along.

Within the morning, at the time of the siesta hour, while all the town slept, Torres received a second surprise. This time it was the sight of Leoncia and her youngest brother, Ricardo, on mules, leading a third that was evidently loaded with a camping outfit.

The third expedition was Torres' own, neither more nor less meagre than Leoncia's, for it was composed only of himself and one Jose Mane Mancheno, a notorious murderer of the place whom Torres, for private reasons, had saved from the buzzards of San Juan. But Torres' plans, in the matter of an expedition, were more ambitious than they appeared.

Not far up the slopes of the Cordilleras dwelt the strange tribe of the Caroos. Originally founded by runaway negro slaves of Africa and Carib slaves of the Mosquito Coast, the renegades had perpetuated themselves with stolen women of the tierra caliente and with fugitive women slaves like themselves.

Between the Mayas beyond and the government of the coast this unique colony had maintained itself in semi-independence. Added to, in later days, by runaway Spanish prisoners, the Caroos had become a hotchpotch of bloods and breeds, possessing a name and a taint so bad that the then governing power of Columbia, had it not been too occupied with its own particular political grafts, would have sent armies to destroy the pesthole.

And in this pesthole of the Caroos Jose Mancheno had been born of a Spanish murderer father and a postisa murderess mother. And to this pesthole Jose Mancheno was leading Torres in order that the commands of Thomas Regan of Wall street might be carried out.

"Lucky we found him when we did," Francis told Henry, as they rode at the rear of the last Maya priest.

The old man, as he led the way, was forever pulling out the sacred tassel and mumbling and muttering as he fingered it.

An Echoed Hope

"Hope the old gentleman doesn't wear it out," was Henry's fervent wish. "You'd think he'd read the directions once and remember them for a little while, instead of continually pawing them over."

They rode out through the jungle into a clear space that looked as if at some time man had downed the jungle and fought it back. Beyond, by the vista afforded by the clearing the mountain called Blanco Rovalo towered high in the sunny sky. The old Maya halted his mule, ran over certain strings in the tassel, pointed to the mountain, and spoke in broken Spanish.

"It says: In the footsteps of the God wait till the eyes of Chia flash."

He indicated the particular knots of a string as the source of his information.

"Where are the footsteps, old priest?" Henry demanded, staring about him at the unbroken sward.

But the old man started his mule, and, with a tattoo of bare heels on the creature's ribs, hastened it on across the clearing into the jungle beyond.

"He's like a hound on the scent, and it looks as if the scent is getting hot," Francis remarked.

At the end of a half-mile, where the jungle turned to grassland on swift-rising slopes, the old man forced his mule into a gallop which he maintained until he reached a natural depression in the ground. Three feet or more in depth of area is sufficient to accommodate a dozen persons in comfort, its form was strikingly like that which some colossal human foot could have made.

"The footstep of the God," the old priest proclaimed solemnly ere he slid off his mule and prostrated himself in prayer. "In the footstep of the God must we wait till the eyes of Chia flash—so say the sacred knots."

"Pretty good place for a meal," Henry vouchsafed, looking down into the depression. "While waiting for the numbo-jumbo foolery to come off we might as well stay our stomachs."

"If Chia doesn't object," laughed Francis.

And Chia did not object—at least, the old priest could not find any objections written in the knots.

While the mules were being tethered on the edge of the first break of woods water was fetched from a nearby spring and a fire built in the footstep. The old Maya seemed oblivious to everything as he mumbled endless prayers and ran the knots over and over.

"If only he doesn't blow up," Francis said.

"I thought he was wild-eyed the first day we met him up in Juchitan," concurred Henry. "But it's nothing to the way his eyes are now."

The Road to Death

Here spoke the peon, who, unable to understand a word of their English, nevertheless sensed the drift of it.

"This is very religious, very dangerous, to have anything to do with the old Maya sacred things. It is the death-road. My father knows. Many men have died. The deaths are sudden and horrible. Even Maya priests have died. My father's father so died. He, too, loved a woman of the tierra caliente, and for love of her he sold the Maya secret, and by the secret and by the knot-writing led tierra caliente men to the treasure. He died. They all died.

"My father does not like the women of the tierra calliente now that he is old. He liked them too well in his youth, which was his sin. And he knows the danger of leading you to the treasure many men have sought during the centuries. Of those who found it not one came back. It is said that even conquisadores and pirates of the English Morgan have won to the hiding place and decorated it with their bones."

"And when your father dies," Francis queried, "then, being his son, you will be the Maya high priest."

"No, senor," the peon shook his head. "I am only half-Maya. I cannot read the knots. My father did not teach me because I was not of the pure Maya blood."

HEARST PAPERS ACCLAIMED BY SUFFRAGISTS

Victory in Congress Would Have Been Impossible Without Their Their Aid, Says Mrs. Trout

Springfield, Ill., June 11.—Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout, who has led the woman suffrage fight in Illinois in recent years, gives the highest praise to the Hearst newspapers for their support of the cause in the long battle. She said:

"What we have done would have been impossible without the support of the Hearst papers.

"They gave us most invaluable assistance at all times.

"In 1913, when we won partial suffrage in the Legislature, they did everything possible. They gave us editorials whenever we asked. They assigned to us a special man, in addition to their regular correspondents, to aid us to do everything we asked. We could not have succeeded without this help.

"Then in June of last year, after the bill had passed, we wanted aid and means to continue our campaign to educate the people to secure full suffrage.

"In our stress and penury—we were without means—we came to the Hearst papers. I met Mr. Hearst in Chicago that Summer and told him our needs.

"He gave us a special edition of one of his newspapers.

"He raised $15,000 on that edition—the funds which made possible the continuation of our fight.

"Even the furniture in our present headquarters in the Tower Building—the mahogany desks, tables and chairs, and the carpets—we owe to Mr. Hearst. They were the proceeds of a furniture 'ad' we obtained in the Hearst special edition.

"Again, in 1917, when we fought for the constitutional convention, the Hearst papers helped us as always, giving us editorials whenever we needed or asked for them.

"In the Congressional fight the Hearst papers throughout the country gave invaluable aid.

"The Hearst papers always have been our friends—they stood with us in our darkest days, and I would be an ingrate if I did not voice, in this glad hour, the thanks that the women owe to Mr. Hearst and his newspapers."

Miss Nellie Carlin, Mrs. J. V. McGraw and other suffrage leaders here voiced similar sentiments.

ABANDON EFFORT TO OUST POLICE HEAD CARR

Lawrence, June 11. — Leaders in the recent strike have abandoned their efforts to secure the recall of Police Commissioner Peter Carr, whom they alleged conducted the business of his office inefficiently. Papers for the recall were taken out several weeks ago but were not circulated to any extent. Samuel Brampall, chairman of the strike committee, returned the paper to the city clerk, stating that the labor interests were too busy to bother with Carr's recall. A hearing on the petition of Commissioner Carr for naturalization will be held in Boston next week.

SUES LOTHROP FOR ATTACK BY MONKEY

George E. Lothrop, Jr., of Brookline, has been sued for $2,000 by Joseph Buckley of Somerville, a minor, through his mother, Mrs. Mary Buckley of Somerville. He alleges that while in a Boston theatre owned by the defendants he was attacked by a monkey that had escaped from the stage, and was injured.

Report Britain Bars 'Dry' Workers Going Over From U. S.

By W. L. MALLABAR,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, June 11.—That a number of American temperance lecturers preparing to come here for an "international dry campaign" were refused passports at the request of the British government was reported here today.

Nevertheless the Anti-Saloon League of America has already started work in Great Britain. William E. Johnson, organizing secretary of the league, has already taken a suite of offices in Fleet street and as evidence that he expects a long fight ahead of him he has leased them for twenty-three years.

Mr. Johnson stated that a band of forty lecturers will start for this country at the earliest possible moment for the purpose of spreading the "glad tidings." They will not confine their attention to Great Britain but will work all over Europe. Literature, charts and advertising posters are already in the course of preparation and a big campaign will be instituted—as soon as the lecturers are permitted to leave the United States.

At the same time, it is said, a body of selected speakers will be sent from England to the United States for the purpose of studying conditions there and to gather data for their use in the campaign here. The society has apparently plenty of funds and expects the hearty co-operation of the British and foreign temperance bodies on this side of the Atlantic.

It is evident that the American "drys" are going to make a strenuous effort to convert Great Britain to their cause.

Whether the representations which led the American government to refuse passports to timperance workers came officially from the British government or were unofficial is not positively known.

FAMILIES DRIVEN OUT BY FIRE IN CHELSEA

Fire of undetermined origin drove several families to the street from No. 71 Grove street, Chelsea, today and caused damage of $5,600. The blaze started on the second floor of the building and spread to the rear of the two-and-one-half story wooden apartment house. It also ignited the building at No. 77 Grove street, where damage of $3,500 resulted. The building at No. 71 was owned by Abraham Mendenburg.

BOSTON MEN ACCUSED OF RAISING $1 BILLS

Providence, June 11.—Three young men, said to be residents of Boston, were arrested for the Federal authorities on the charge of raising $1 bills to $10. They gave their names as Ralph Diparlo, no address; Charles Gaglone, Quince street, and Cataldi Farringio, Williams street, Roxbury. The police say they pasted ciphers alongside the numeral 1 on the bills.

SAYS NEIGHBOR STOLE WIFE'S AFFECTIONS

Ernest Ray of Somerville, Who Married a Girl of 13, Now Sues for Divorce

Charging that his next-door neighbor stole the affections of his wife, Ernest J. Ray of Somerville has brought suit for alienation against Clarence E. Mitten of No. 22 Lincoln street, Somerville. The Rays formerly lived at No. 20 Lincoln street.

Ray married when he was twenty-eight, and she thirteen. The defendant in the suit is a railroad man.

Ray, during a recent hearing indirectly related to the alienation proceedings, testified that after a temporary separation he revisited the lodging house on Lincoln street, which was conducted by his wife, and found Mitten established as the man of the house.

The husband made his entrance by way of a cellar window, according to the evidence, and was confronted by his wife with a revolver in her hand. After disarming her he proceeded upstairs, to find Mitten emerging from a bedroom with a hair brush in his hand.

Ray in his former testimony declared that his wife and Mitten left the house together following his forcible entrance.

W. M. PHILLIPS, HOPEDALE, FOUND DEAD IN BARN

Milford, June 11.—William M. Phillips, sixty-seven, a prominent Mason and farmer of Hopedale, was found dead in a chair in his barn. Physicians gave the cause of death as apoplexy. Phillips had worked all day in the local mills, and was stricken after he had done some gardening on his premises. The funeral will be Friday, under Masonic auspices. He is survived by his wife, two daughters and a brother.

WAKEFIELD PAYS OFF AND 'FIRES' TEN ARCHITECTS

A reduction in working hours and an increase in pay which will bring wages higher than under the old schedule were also announced.

"ROMEO" KEYS WOULD BE AN ACTOR

Aged Lover Would Replenish Bankroll by Dancing Before Footlights

John Baker ("Romeo") Keys would go on the stage. The aged fiance of Florence Girardin, nineteen-year-old Dorchester girl, is already negotiating with booking agents. He is not quite sure as to the nature of his "act," but inclines to dancing. As an impersonator of a bareback rider in society horseshows and in other entertainments he feels competent to appear before the public.

Lack of funds prompts him to take this step, he asserts. He is worth about $250,000, but because of guardianship proceedings in which he is the principal he is unable personally to handle any of his money.

Keys believes he has received about $10,000 worth of advertising out of his love affair with Miss Girardin, whom he met last Winter while she was running an elevator at the Harvard Club, where he was a guest.

Keys has just returned from a two weeks' visit to Providence and New York, and while in New York State went to Ossining, where he participated in a reunion at an old military school he attended when a boy.

Keys is in the custody of his counsel, William J. Kelly of No. 10 Court street, this city, and efforts will soon be made to remove the obstacles which are preventing him from marrying Miss Girardin.

WOMAN VICTIM OF STRANGLER FOUND DEAD

Body Discovered on Lonely Farm With Her Leather Belt Tied About Her Neck

Trenton, N. J., June 11.—Evidences of a brutal murder marked the finding of the body of a young woman on a lonely part of Laier farm, which adjoins St. Mary's Cemetery on the outskirts of this city. The victim's hands were tied behind her and a leather belt was drawn tightly around her neck.

The victim was apparently about twenty-five years old. When found she had been dead less than twenty-four hours according to County Physician Scammell. It is the belief of this official and the police that the young woman was lured to the spot, which is about half a mile from the road, and was then attacked, stunned with some blunt instrument and strangled to death.

There were two gashes on the head and the body was lying face downward in a pool of blood. The name "Mrs. T. Eaton" was found on a blood-stained paper, apparently a receipt, in the purse of the victim. The signature to the paper is "T. I." as nearly as the police can decipher.

Should Have Reached Azores, Is Wrecked on Newfoundland

St. John's, N. F., June 11.—How the American steamer Fern, 812 tons register, out of Mobile and bound for Rotterdam, ever went ashore at Knight's Cove on the south side of Bonavista Bay, is puzzling marine experts.

They say they cannot understand how the ship came in this position, as they say the southern route was the logical one and would have brought her near the Azores at this time. They assume that if she had taken the northern route she would have seen Cape Race and located her position sufficiently to shape a proper course. To reach Knights Cove, 150 miles north, involved steering through [illegible]. No explanation [illegible] had been received [illegible].

The crew was saved.

ALICE E. CROWLEY BRIDE OF CHARLES H. M'NALLY

The wedding of Alice Agnes Crowley of Needham to Charles H. McNally took place today. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Emily H. Crowley, and the groom by his brother, Thomas McNally. After a tour of the provinces Mr. and Mrs. McNally will be at home at No. 41 [illegible] street, Needham.

WAKEFIELD MAN BELIEVED DROWNED

Wakefield, June 11.—Robert F. Lapp, a travelling salesman missing since May 29, is believed to have been drowned [illegible] river at Bellows Falls, Vt. His wife today received [illegible] that his automobile, badly smashed, was found on the river bank. Although the river has been dragged and dynamited no trace of the body has been found. Lapp was thirty-eight years old.

"TWAS AN announcement of camel's hair coats. They were remarkable coats; nothing like them has come along for many a day.

The coats are still as good as they were. They are still remarkable coats, but they are NOT camel's hair! We venture to say that 999,999 people out of a million would not have known the difference. But there is ONE man who did. He stands on the end of a huge microscope and inspects Filene merchandise.

He tells us that a camel's hair is so many thousandths of a millimeter in diameter and of a specified length. The hair in these coats is not quite so coarse as the average camel's hair and consequently is not camel's hair. Therefore, it is probably llama hair.

Filene values are made better because we have a man on a microscope inspecting them; the public gets exactly what it pays for, and while our advertisements may not sound quite so alluring, the facts in back of them are just that much better!

One more reason why we say "the store where you get what you pay for any pay only for what you get."

URGES BUILDING RESIDENCES FIRST

Lack of Homes for Workers Hurts New England, Says Architect

"The demand for all kinds of homes, factories and other mercantile buildings is far in excess of the supply," says J. Edward Holmes, of the firm of Sorgi and Holmes, architects, with branch offices at No. 12 Ashburton place. "And what is the answer to the housing question?" asked Mr. Holmes. "Build well—and BUILD NOW."

In the opinion of Architect Holmes, who has given a good deal of attention to the housing problem, frequently speaking before meetings on this subject, the most essential form of building today is the residential kind.

"I have just completed a long tour of the State in three directions," Mr. Holmes said, "and I was amazed to see how little building is being done. While little building is being done outside the city proper, there is much less going on inside. Why is it that Boston is lagging so far behind in building construction? It is difficult to explain. Perhaps it is the Boston state of mind. The Boston mind moves slowly but surely. When the Bostonian moves, he moves.

"To say the least, it is unfortunate to see the Middle West simply humming with buildings and Boston at a standstill, and even in New England, Connecticut, records show, is forging ahead mostly with the construction of industrials. But old Boston is away off. And who can doubt that we need new buildings here?

BUILD HOMES FIRST.

"Personally, I believe we should start in on the construction of residences first, and then tackle the mercantile situation. In the factory districts much building is necessary. But the builders are holding off, and why? They are looking for lower prices of building materials, of real estate and of labor. No man has to overwork his brain to see what is to most of us an obvious fact that it is better to BUILD NOW than to put off building.

"Everyone in the building lines with whom I have spoken recently says that it is futile to wait for prices to drop. The answer is, they won't. The public must take its medicine of high prices, or rather standard prices, because the prices of building materials were never lower than today in comparison to other commodities, and the contractor must take his medicine of high prices, too.

"Now the sooner we get it into our heads to BUILD NOW the better it will be for all of us. It will help everyone to have a building boom at this time. What is the good of wasting precious time in waiting?

RENTS WILL RAISE.

"After four years of world war this country faces a crisis in housing never experienced before, and as I said, the only remedy for this situation is to BUILD NOW! I have a strong belief that rents will be much higher this coming Fall when there is a big rush back from the beaches and the annual hurry-scurry for new houses, which is more to be considered this year than ever before in our housing history.

"The crowded conditions are by no means confined to the cities of the Commonwealth, for the same pressure exists in the smaller communities where the establishments of new industries has brought an influx of population which has completely swamped existing accommodations.

"It will not be long before we see houses being erected in the vicinity of factories and on a large scale. The working man who lives say an hour's ride from his work is not willing to spend two hours a day going to and coming from his labors.

DETROIT BUILDING HOMES.

"It is reasonable to assume that the skilled mechanic or the man who has a standardized kind of work will not remain long in Massachusetts when he can go elsewhere and get the same wages and better living conditions. Detroit today is a magnet to skilled New England workmen. The city of Detroit has appropriated $5,000,000 for the erection of a large number of model homes. The fact that the auto factories are looking for both skilled and untrained workmen and willing to provide houses for them is a clear indication that the position of Boston in the labor market is, to say the least, precarious.

"For the reason alone that workers are being attracted elsewhere if for nothing else, it would be a wise investment for industrial men to build now. To take the words of Governor W. L. Harding of Iowa, the statutes provide safeguards for the worker—plenty of light and air, but do not provide for the comforts of the home.

MATERIAL ACCESSIBLE.

"At the present time," added Mr. Holmes, "the storehouses are filled with all kinds of building materials, which are accessible owing to the lifting of the ban formerly imposed by the government. There is bound to be a big building boom, and the Boston American is to be congratulated for bringing the cold, hard facts to the attention of the prospective builder as well as to all concerned."

TAKEN TO COURT IN CHAIR, NEGRO HELD IN $25,000

After Eight Weeks in Hospital, Clyde Smith Pleads Not Guilty of Attacking Hotel Man

Taken into Brookline police court in a chair carried by officers, with his left leg in a plaster cast, Clyde Smith, twenty-four, a negro, was today charged with assault with intent to kill John F. Sullivan, proprietor of the Hotel Oxford. Smith has been under guard at the Cambridge City Hospital for the past eight weeks suffering from a fractured ankle.

He was arraigned before Judge Parker. Along with the assault charge were several charges of burglary and attempted burglary on the night of April 16 last. Smith waived examination, pleaded not guilty to all charges, and was held in $25,000 for the Grand Jury. In default of bail he was committed to the House of Correction at Dedham.

Sullivan, who was dangerously ill for some weeks from a shot wound received on the night of the alleged burglary, is entirely recovered and was in court today.

According to testimony, he awoke the night of April 16 to find a man in his room. They grappled and the intruder drew a gun. Sullivan managed to deflect the weapon, so that the other man was shot in the hand, but later received a wound which caused him to be on the danger list at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

During the struggle Mrs. Sullivan appeared. The intruder broke away and leaped over the banisters from the second floor to the first. He made his escape on a bicycle, alleged to have been stolen from the home of F. O. Stevens, No. 108 Centre street, Brookline. Confident that the man who made the daring leap must be injured, the police later located Smith in a hospital and placed him under arrest. It was testified that Mrs. Sullivan visited the hospital and identified Smith.

LOCATE DENTIST WHO DESERTED WIFE FOR GIRL

Dr. Frank L. Goodspeed and Pearl Rose of Whitman in California

Whitman, June 11.—Business letters addressed to the East have led to the discovery of the whereabouts of Dr. Frank L. Goodspeed, prominent dentist of this town, who caused a sensation here when he deserted his wife and children to elope with his young office assistant, Pearl Rose. Both are now in California, it has been definitely learned.

Not since the elopement last November, when both the parents of the girl and the wife of the dentist received letters explaining their intentions mailed from the North Station, Boston, has any trace of the couple been found. After reaching the North Station the pair dropped out of sight and have successfully eluded police officers all over New England.

Dr. Goodspeed, who is thirty-three years old, met Miss Rose while serving as lecturer at Tufts Dental School. Their acquaintance grew to friendship, with the result that the dentist employed the girl as his assistant. A short time before the couple disappeared the doctor's attentions to the assistant became so marked that his wife remonstrated with him.

On November 28 last Dr. Goodspeed bade his wife good by, stating that he was "going on a short vacation."

The following day Miss Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Rose, of Arthur street, disappeared. The girl's parents were prostrated when they received a letter from their daughter a few days later, but they have never divulged its contents. Mrs. Goodspeed, after receiving the letter from her husband, stated that she would go teaching and support her children.

Wife Quit Husband When He Bit Her On the Nose

When her husband bit her on the nose Mrs. Mary A. McCormick of No. 6 Warren street, Roxbury, decided it was about time she quit, according to her testimony in the Suffolk County Divorce Court before Judge Jenney. "After he bit me on the nose, Your Honor, I had him arrested for assault and battery."

She asks for divorce on the ground of cruel treatment.

Mrs. Mary Coakley of Roxbury told of hearing Mrs. McCormick scream while she was walking along School street, Boston, after her friend had left the Pemberton square courthouse following the filing of separation papers. "Turning around I saw Mr. McCormick," she testified. "He had kicked his wife in the leg because she had filed the papers."

NEW WIFE COST SHIP BROKER $75,000

Spouse No. 1 Collects Heavily When Spurned for Waldorf-Astoria Phone Girl

New York, June 11.—Theodore Dougherty, ship broker, has paid $75,000 for the privilege of taking unto himself a new wife. His first wife, Frances B. Dougherty of Bethel, Conn., obtained a separation in 1917 after she had discovered that he had been accompanied on automobile trips by Miss Ruby Buchanan, formerly a telephone operator at the Waldorf-Astoria. Mrs. Dougherty was awarded $42,000 in lieu of dower rights and $20 a week alimony. Since then Mrs. Dougherty has obtained a final decree of divorce.

She then brought suit against the former telephone girl, who had become Mrs. Dougherty No. 2, for alienation of the affections of her former husband. When the suit came up for trial before Justice Hotchkiss in the Supreme Court it was announced the case had been settled out of court. It was learned that Dougherty had settled with his former wife by making a payment of $25,000, which, with the original payment and the alimony, brought the total up to about $75,000.

LAUDS INDIAN AS LESSON TO BOY SCOUTS

Hundreds of New Members Secured in Big Rally on Common

America's spirit of democracy was derived from the Indian of this continent, declared Dr. Charles Eastman, Indian writer and lecturer, who lauded the training of the Boy Scouts at a big rally on the Common which secured hundreds of new members.

Dr. Eastman urged support of the movement and during his address told of his own early experiences with the Sioux tribe to which he belongs.

He is in favor of the absolute citizenship of the Indian and stated that they consider themselves as past the stage of tutorship.

The meeting was presided over by George S. Smith, president of the Boston City Club.

There were a number of interesting demonstrations at the scout camp on the Common. The Cambridge troop gave an exhibition of scout-craft.

No definite reports on the results of this week's campaign has been made to headquarters as yet, but Boston is taking to the membership movement and thousands of boys have enrolled. The quota assigned for this city is 31,950. The total for the nation is 1,000,000.

A report from Chairman Jameson of New Hampshire shows that Concord has secured its quota and is still going ahead. The managers of the drive in this State and Rhode Island both reported that indications were favorable.

Signalling by means of a heliograph was demonstrated at the rally by Scout Troop 6 of Arlington, under the direction of Scout Master Harvey Bacon. One boy stood on the platform of Liberty Court, while another was on the roof of the Shepard-Norwell building.

STUDENTS' TRAINING CORPS ASK WAR BONUS

A large number of former members of the Students' Army Training Corps, residents of Boston and vicinity and students at the various colleges in and around Boston appeared before the Senate Ways and Means Committee today to present their arguments for the inclusion of the S. A. T. C. in the Bonus Bill which is pending before that committee before it goes to the Senate for its final passage.

The Bonus Bill which has already passed the House specifically excludes from the benefits of that bill all men enlisted in any unit of the Students' Army Training Corps.

REFUSE HABEAS CORPUS FOR I. W. W. DEPORTS

New York, June 11.—Writs of habeas corpus to prevent deportation of seven members of the I. W. W. found guilty of inciting industrial unrest in the Northwest have been dismissed by Federal Judge Hand.

The court ruled that though the seven were not convicted directly of advocating destruction of property, their soliciting of members for the I. W. W. when they knew the organization approved of sabotage and their distribution of the organization's literature was equivalent to such advocacy.

22 SHIPPING BOARD CRAFT WITHOUT CARGOES

Rio Janeiro, June 11.—Because of a reported inability to get cargoes which have been secured by steamers, twenty-two Norwegian sailing vessels under charter to the United States Shipping Board are in the harbor here with empty bottoms. Several of them have been here for more than a month and it is understood that the demurrage charges are costing the Shipping Board $10,000 a day.

Los Angeles Police Nab Alleged Anarchist Plotter Distributing Radical Fliers

Los Angeles, Cal., June 11.—Jesus Romo, alleged anarchist organizer, believed by Federal officials to be a member of the anarchistic band responsible for the recent bomb outrages in the East, is under arrest here. He was taken into custody while posting handbills calling for a meeting of radicals June 15.

Immigration Inspector Burnett said the man admitted coming here to organize anarchists for the purpose of overthrowing the government. He carried a letter of introduction from Chicago radicals dated February 7, last, which stated he was sent to California especially to "Organize workers in Orange districts."

Life in the Open

The Adirondacks and the Thousand Islands

For pure delight of life in the open, there are few places like the Adirondacks!

Famous men have written much about its natural beauties. But, more convincing—tired city dwellers go there summer after summer, to get away from work, to forget business, to absorb the spirit and freedom of the woods, the lakes, the hills; to play, to sport, to live close to Nature; to camp out—fish, hunt, canoe, tramp, golf; to breathe new air, meet new people; to seek for a time, at least, their heart's desire—a full life in the open.

The Adirondacks will put into you, in a week, zip and freshness for a whole season of work.

The Thousand Islands of the St. Lawrence, just west of the Adirondacks, are a vacation in themselves. All along our shores, and the shores of our Canadian border-land, is most interesting international Social life. It is the motor-boating metropolis of the world. It is famous for its Bass and Muscallonge fishing. It is the starting point for the trip down the rapids to Montreal.

The United States Railroad Administration invites you to travel and offers Summer Excursion fares. Your local ticket agent or nearest Consolidated Ticket Office will help you plan your trip. Write for illustrated booklet, "The Adirondacks and the Thousand Islands," containing lists of hotels, etc., addressing the nearest Travel Bureau.

PORTLAND TRIP POPULAR WITH AUTOISTS

Proves Just the Right Distance and Affords Good Roads and Hotels

A week-end run to Portland, Me., is furnished to readers of this page for the coming week by the Touring Department of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company.

This trip is popular with automobilists because it is about the right distance, approximately 115 miles, and generally speaking affords good roads and good hotels both at Portland and along the line.

The trip furnished is by the shore route but a more direct route, some twenty miles shorter, can be had by taking the Newburyport turnpike from the corner of Broadway, Everett, and the Revere Beach boulevard and going straight through to Newburyport and later by taking the left fork instead of the right at Salisbury (11 miles out of Newburyport) and following the State road to Portsmouth. About eight miles of this road, from Salisbury to Hampton Centre, is brand new macadam and is like a billiard table in surface.

The shore road, however, is pretty fair and from Saco to Portland the last fourteen miles, the road is perfect concrete. Here the speed limit is twenty-five miles an hour except through the villages but motorists should be careful to keep to this speed as there are motor police on the road.

TEN YEARS LIMIT FOR AUTO THIEVES

The Senate passed to be engrossed the bill calling for imprisonment of from five to ten years for automobile stealing. It attached to the measure an amendment offered by Senator Loring of Beverly making it prima facie evidence of guilt for a machine to be found in the possession of a person not its owner with number plate defaced.

Beware the Man Who Offers to Watch Your Auto

Autoists who drive their cars to the theatre and dinner places are warned of an entirely new species of auto bandits who have recently commenced operations near the Opera House and elsewhere.

Their method is to approach a machine as it drives up to the theatre and offer to watch the car for the evening for 50 cents. The owner is asked to drive his machine to a back street near the theatre, and when he comes out from the show he finds that the machine has been looted of everything that could be taken off. Recently, near the Opera House, several cars were so robbed of robes, speedometers, spare tires and other accessories.

AUTO MEN THANK WOODS FOR AID TO HEROES

Colonel Arthur Woods, Assistant to the Secretary of War, who has been a leader in the efforts to provide employment for men discharged from the Army and Navy, was thanked and his efforts indorsed at the annual meeting of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. The resolution called upon all members to give special attention to those men who were classed as unskilled laborers before entering the service and who now are ambitious to obtain technical training necessary to enable them to fill jobs as skilled laborers.

HONK AND WATCH ONLY WAY TO DODGE TRAPS

Autoists Today Must Be Safe and Sane; Joy Riders Have Little Chance

Between the State-wide crusade against glaring headlights, the Summer activities of the police, the necessity for watching for one-way streets, the presence of those new yellow anti-parking signs, the fear of motor thieves, the holes in the roads and the need of care to keep people from walking in front of his car, much of the joy is taken out of it for the motorist in these days.

But he would do well to obey the speed laws also and keep a sharp eye out for traps. Motorists should obey the speed regulations at all times but they should be especially careful in the following places:

Commonwealth avenue between Arlington and Massachusetts avenue.

Jamaicaway between the pond and the Arboretum.

Morton street between Canterbury and Blue Hill avenue.

Bennington street, East Boston.

Broadway, Chelsea.

Anywhere along the Revere Beach parkway.

There are also traps all along the route to Camp Devens.

400 EAST BOSTON IRON WORKERS ON STRIKE

All the machinists, blacksmiths, helpers and others employed at the plant of Mead-Morrison & Co. in East Boston are on strike, about 400 altogether, affecting all departments. It is claimed that an agreement was made with the Navy Department which stipulated that the same rate of wages as were paid at the Charlestown Navy Yard would be paid to employes in private plants.

On November 8, it is alleged, navy yard employes, including union machinists and blacksmiths, received an increase in wages of eight cents an hour, while the employes of Mead-Morrison & Co. continued to receive the same old pay, seventy-three cents an hour.

TAFT OPPOSES ANY PLAN TO SIDETRACK

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 11.—While declining to enter into any discussion of the Knox resolution for the separation of the League of Nations from the peace treaty, William Howard Taft, who spoke here, let it be known that he was unalterably opposed to anything that might prevent early and complete adoption of the League of Nations plan.

ASK MR. FIXIT

Mr. Fixit will answer all questions pertaining to automobile matters in this column on Wednesdays, but he cannot undertake to reply to personal inquiries by letter, so please do not send stamps. The name and address must accompany each inquiry as a guarantee of good faith.

Dear Mr. Fixit: I have a three-cell battery in my car, and it seems as though one cell was doing all the work, for whenever I go to fill the battery one cell needs a great deal and the other two practically no water. Is this as it should be or is anything the matter?
K. L., Everett.

Your battery is probably leaking. Have it examined by a battery expert, but be sure and keep the plates covered with water in the meantime.

Mr. Fixit: Why is the transmission on a car called a "planetary" transmission?
J. E. C., Haverhill.

It is so called because of the fancied resemblance of the action of the three gears around the central shaft to the revolution of the planets around the sun.

Dear Sir: After washing an automobile, what body polish do you think best to use to give a high finish?
E. A., Boston.

I do not, as a general thing, recommend any specific proprietary preparation, but in this case it is unnecessary. Most of the polishes on the market are all right, but there is no better body polish in the world than a good grade of lubricating oil. Put it on with cheese cloth, do not use too much and be sure to rub it dry.

Dear Mr. Fixit: My car about a week ago developed a popping back through the carbureter. I thought it was due to obstruction in the gasoline pipe and cleaned the pipe; also looked at the needle valve. Everything seems O. K., but she still does it. What is the trouble?
R. A., Boston.

Take off your commutator and clean it with gasoline. Very likely you are not getting a proper timing, due to dirt and grase in the timer. This will result in the very effect you describe, although the symptoms would indicate at first interruption in the gasoline flow. A. O. P., Rochdale, Mass., also take notice.

My Dear Sir: To settle and argument will you say whether, in your opinion, it is unwise to fill a radiator which is very hot with cold water. My friend says it is likely to crack a cylinder, whereas I claim there is no danger.
G. W. F., Boston.

Unless the radiator was entirely empty the danger would be slight, but on the principle of "safety first" your friend wins the bet. After all, it takes but a few minutes to allow the radiator to cool off and then you are on the safe side.

Dear Mr. Fixit: Where near Boston is there a stretch of cement road? J. L., So. Boston.

There are a few miles of it between North Billerica and Lowell. There is also a mile or so between Randolph and Avon.

Dear Mr. Fixit: Would you advise equipping my car with two tanks to use kerosene as a fuel? What other appliances should I have?
S. M., Boston.

I should advise your not doing it, as you are sure to have trouble. In the first place, two tanks will be necessary, as you will have to start on gasoline, as you say. You will also have to have special heating appliances for your carbureter, but the principal disadvantage would be that you would have to constantly change the oil in your crank case because kerosene condenses if not properly heated and will run down into your crank case and dilute your lubricating oil. Bad as gasoline is in these days, I advise you to stick to it.

2,000 CRIPPLES AND ORPHANS ON SAIL

Guests of Boston Automobile Men on Annual Jaunt to Nantasket

If you had been born in the crowded North End, and were twelve years old and crippled, and had never seen the ocean, what would be your first sensations if you were suddenly lifted out of your little room in the orphanage and transported to Nantasket?

Probably the same as those of little Pasquale Ricci, one of 2,000 crippled or orphan boys and girls who were today the guests of the Boston Automobile Association on the annual jaunt to Nantasket Beach.

And was Pasquale happy? He'll say he was. But the joy of the little cripple and the wonder, as he viewed the endless expanse of water which he had lived next to all his life and never seen, brought tears to the eyes of the comfortable hosts as they sat back in their cushioned motorcars and watched him drink it in.

"Gee, it's the Atlantic Ocean," said the pale-faced little explorer, with much the awed wonder another Italian must have expressed when he looked from the deck of his caravel and saw the rim of the Western World. "I never thought I'd see it."

ALL MADE VERY HAPPY.

And the men and women who had for the day pulled themselves away from their desks and their merchandise just to make 2,000 unfortunate little people happy felt repaid, and a bit embarrassed. It takes mighty little to make a small boy happy when he has struggled for twelve long years under heavy handicaps, with father and mother gone, depending on the casual charity of strangers.

Pasquale was one of the 2,000, and probably the only one of the older children who had experienced that tragedy of living within sound of the murmur of the waves without ever seeing the ocean. But his life story was not sadder than that of other little people, for whom this annual jaunt to Nantasket is the event of the year, looked forward to with longing, looked back upon with triumph.

The halt, the lame and the blind, the fatherless and motherless, the little strays of the city streets who have been robbed of the care of parents and bred under the care of strangers, were there at Nantasket today.

And to the honor of Nantasket Beach, the Mecca of joy riders, the happy hunting ground of the carefree, it "did itself proud for the little visitors.

TONS OF "GOODIES."

Tons of ice cream and candy and bananas were consumed, noise was made "regardless" with the whistles and drums and other devices provided by the committee, and all in all it was a great day.

Chester I. Campbell was in charge of the excursion. The outing was non-sectarian, Jewish, Catholic and Protestant institutions sending delegations. The Salvation Army sent a particularly large party of orphans.

The children were taken from the following homes: St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum, N. E. Peabody Home, Martin Luther Orphan's Home, South End Day Nursery, Bowdoin Square Tabernacle, Associated Charities of Quincy, Sunnyside Day Nursery, Salvation Army Palace, St. Mark's Church, Ruggles Street Baptist Church, Volunteers of America, West End Community House, City Missionary to Jews, Baptist Syrian Mission, Cambridge Neighborhood House, East End Christian Union, Morgan Memorial Home, Margaret Fuller Home, Boston Baptist Bethel and the Union Rescue Mission.

FIGHTING IN MUNICH; NEW STRIKES THREATENED

Copenhagen, June 11.—Fighting has broken out in Munich as a result of the labor unrest caused by the summary execution of the Communist leader Levine, according to advices from Berlin today. The situation has suddenly become more serious, and further strikes are threatened. The position of Premier Scheidermann and Defence Minister Noske has become critical.

NEW AMERICAN CARS NOW ON SHOW

"Balanced" Six Featured by Uniformity and General Efficiency

The new salesroom of the New England American Motor Car Corporation is at No. 94 Massachusetts avenue and the cars are now on [illegible] exhibition there. M. E. Jackson, the sales manager of the American Motor Car Corporation of No. 141 Broadway, New York, and H. D. Dockray, president of the local [illegible] company, arrived [illegible] in [illegible] with several others, bringing with them five new cars and a chassis.

The trip over from the factory at Plainfield, N. J., was made in remarkably good time and the cars ran very smoothly although they were all new and stiff.

The American "Balanced" Six is the car which [illegible] has passed on and is meeting with instant success in every [illegible] which it is represented.

The proximity of the factory to New England [illegible] is a factor which means a great deal [illegible]. Parts and cars [illegible] brought over in short order.

H. D. Dockray, the president of the New England Motor Car Corporation, is pleased with the [illegible] the success of the American Six. His recent trip to the factory was a revelation to him.

The service station at No. 2[illegible] Columbia street is equipped [illegible] parts and the new company is ready to do business on a large scale. Lawrence [illegible], formerly of the Hudson Motor Car Company, is the production manager and [illegible] assured Mr. Dockray that the [illegible] is increasing each week.

Mr. Jackson expects to be in the city for some time and the concern is anxious to get in touch with New England dealers.

CORDS PROVE OF GREAT SERVICE ON AUTO TRUCKS

Among well informed truck owners there is no longer any question as to the success of the pneumatic tire for trucks, either in the matter of durability or as an expense saver.

The United States Tire Company, which was the first tire manufacturer to turn out the big pneumatics for trucks, follows carefully the records made by trucks using the big Nobby Cords and finds that its predictions regarding satisfactory mileages and economy of operation are conservative.

The White Line Transportation Company of Birmingham, Ala., has turned in some records on tires of this sort used on three of its passenger busses. J. A. Propst, owner of the company, says that the oldest set of tires have already made more than 26,000 miles each and are still running.

Pneumatics are especially suitable for passenger conveyances, as the comfort of passengers must be considered. The bus line which operates on pneumatics offers as comfortable a ride as could be had in a touring car, an advantage which a bus equipped with solids does not possess.

COLUMBIA SIX MODERATE IN PRICE

Wonderful Performer, Graceful and Pleasing to Eye, Says R. R. Ross

The Columbia Six is now located in new quarters. R. R. Ross, president of the Fiat Motor Sales Company of No. 841 Boylston street, has taken the agency and distribution for New England. Mr. Ross is well and widely known in Boston and New England and has been handling the Fiat and other well known makes for many years.

Recently he went out West to look over the automobile factories for a car which he thought he could conscientiously offer to his old clients, but one which was more moderately priced. He chose the Columbia and he is very enthusiastic in praising its good qualities.

Mr. Ross said in a recent interview: "I have been in the motor car game for years and know automobiles and I will make the statement that I can sell to [illegible] per cent of the people who will ride in the car. It is a wonderful performer — full of power and the lines are graceful and pleasing to the eye.

"We have not had an opportunity to test the car for mileage, but I am of the opinion that it will be a revelation when we do. I am certainly pleased with the Columbia and also delighted with the reception it has had in Boston since its arrival on our salesroom floor."

BUSINESS BOOM IN VIM MOTOR TRUCKS

Only Difficulty Getting Cars Fast Enough, Reports New England Manager

George W. Taggart, New England manager of the Vim Motor Truck Company of New England, says that business is certainly good and the only difficulty is in getting the trucks fast enough. [illegible] recently opened new salesrooms at No. 1110 Commonwealth avenue and the sales have far exceeded the expectations of the [illegible]. The [illegible] especially good and the [illegible] have been numerous.

Mr. Taggart pointed to several specials around the salesroom floor and said that they were all sold and were only left on the floor through the courtesy of the buyers. [illegible]

BIG DEMAND FOR HEAVY AUTO TRUCKS

"The motor truck business is getting better each week," said Charles West of the Stewart Motor Truck Corporation yesterday.

"The demand for heavy trucks has suddenly developed and it is [illegible] the vicinity of Boston and New England but of the whole country. The West is teeming with business and this indicates that the country is getting back to normal conditions.

"The building boom has struck the whole country and this means a demand for heavy duty trucks. Roads are in need of repair and many new roads are being built.

"All this means that contractors and builders must move material quickly and must have new heavy trucks. The old trucks have seen so much service during the war that they are practically worn out and new ones must take their places.

"Business certainly seems to be increasing and it is a good indication that the country is getting back to healthy, normal conditions."

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. [illegible] a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance, the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear, dull eyes ought to brighten and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION:—Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its tendency to increase weight, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

SAYS MARRIED ARE TOGETHER TOO MUCH

Plymouth Singer Asserts Other 6 Days Are Their Own Business

"If husbands and wives met but once a week, say on Sunday, they would never get tired of one another and the divorce courts would have to close."

This is the novel philosophy of Flavia Arcare, the striking looking singer and actress who is one of the principal members of Carl Hunt's company, which is presenting "Oh Boy" at the Plymouth Theatre this week.

ABOUT THE OTHER SIX DAYS.

"It's a common experience that familiarity breeds contempt," declares Miss Arcare. "The modern married couple see each other constantly under the most disadvantageous circumstances and their opinion of each other grows constantly worse. Now if they only met Sundays after spending the other six days looking forward to the rare privilege they would see only the good and beautiful in each other."

"And whom would they be seeing the other six days?" asked the reporter artlessly.

"That is neither's business."

"Well, there is lots of divorcing on the stage and theatrical married couples are frequently separated."

"True. They see each other too infrequently. That gives a chance for the deadly third party to [illegible] in and get in his or her cruel work. There should be a golden [illegible] for both stage folks and people not on the stage."

"Are you married yourself?"

"No," replied the actress. "That's why I know so much about it."

Prendergast Scores Testimony of Witnesses at Rutland Sanitarium Hearing

Scathing denunciation of the testimony of witnesses who had testified as to conditions at the State Sanitarium at Rutland was made by Daniel L. Prendergast, a member of the board of trustees for the Hospital for Consumptives, at a hearing before the legislative committee on Public Institutions.

He branded many of the statements as absolutely false.

"I am as near the people as any man in this room," continued Mr. Prendergast, "and I know [illegible]

OUIMET PICKS BRADY TO WIN NATIONAL GOLF TITLE

By FRANCIS OUIMET.

Mike Brady, Oakley Country Club professional, matched his round of Monday with another seventy-four yesterday, which placed him in front of the field by a margin of two strokes. Mike played superbly, going out in thirty-six and returning in thirty-eight.

At the sixth hole he was two better than fours, aand it looked like he might go out in a thirty-three.

Had he played the last three holes of that outward half [illegible] have been [illegible] A five four [illegible] was the best he [illegible]

Walter Hagen's seventy-three might have been lower. He told me that seven [illegible] putts failed to drop and [illegible] gone down he would have been about sixty-eight. His total for the thirty-six holes is 1[illegible]

Along with Hagen is George Bowden and Louis Tellier. Both had to add a 78 to their 73 of the day before.

Tellier had all sorts of bad luck on the greens, taking three putts on no less than eight of them. To one who knows Tellier this seems unbelievable [illegible] a grand performer around the greens, he could not [illegible] The greens were like lightning and mark these words the winner must be on his [illegible] on the putting surfaces. This is the vital te[illegible] Those who can score well enough to be close to the front stand a gra[illegible] chance. Brady is going very stro[illegible] and he looks good all the way. HARVARD CREWS TRY PRACTICE STARTS

Harvard Training Quarters, Red Top, Ct., June 11.—The Harvard crews spent an uneventful day yesterday taking long paddles both in the morning and evening. The conditions were excellent for fast work but, after the hard row on Monday, Coach Haines decided to pay attention to individual faults and practice racing starts.

Although the crews rowed over ten miles each during the day, the stroke for the distance was never raised above thirty except when practicing racing starts. In the morning race over three miles of the course the varsity won over the sec[illegible] crew by a quarter of a lengt[illegible] while the freshmen were half [illegible] length behind the second crew.

Here the freshman and second cre[illegible] were sent back to the float and Coa[illegible] Haines took the varsity in a[illegible] coached each individually.

MURAD
THE TURKISH CIGARETTE

There is always a reason why!

MURADS are made of 100% pure Turkish tobacco—the world's most famous tobacco for cigarettes—grown about the Black Sea, in the Orient.

MURADS are also the world's largest selling high-grade Turkish cigarette—and their greatest increase in sales in any year was in 1918.

Now don't you agree, there is always a reason?

It is true that "ordinary" cigarettes cost a trifle less.

DEMPSEY HAS NO GUARD FOR WILLARD'S UPPERCUT

By FRANK G. MENKE

Toledo, O., June 11.—The Jack Dempsey rooters may never get a chance to exercise their vocal chords on the Fourth of July if the Utah slugger does not perfect some adequate defence for the rim of his jaw.

Dempsey's present style of battling knows no guard for either the upper or lower part of his head. And the deadliest punch that Jess Willard carries in his immense arms is an uppercut.

What Is the Ideal Modern Wife?

MANY an American warrior, who never dreamed, prior to the war, of marrying outside of his native land, has found his ideal of womanhood overseas. Witness the number of brides taken by our service men.

This romance phase of the war has brought to the fore the absorbing question of what is the best kind of a mate for a man.

Has war broadened or in any other way changed the general masculine view toward womanhood. Our young men have acquired a stern realization of life. Will they be more critical in their search for a wife?

Exactly what is the ideal modern wife?

A prize of $25 will be awarded for the letter which, in the opinion of the judges, embodies the clearest and most unbiased answer. For the letter adjudged second best $10 will be awarded, and for the letter adjudged third best $5.

The decisions will be made by Beatrice Fairfax.

Confine your letter to 200 words, write on one side of the paper only and give your name and address. Only initials will be used if you so prefer.

The contest closes Saturday noon, June 14. No letters received after that date will be considered. The announcement of the winners will be made during the week of June 23.

Address letters to Boston American Magazine Page, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

Making Good Soup

By Loretto C. Lynch

PERHAPS one of the most harassing [illegible] problems is that of providing soup for just two or three people. Of course, there are the commercially canned soups, but for one reason or another some folks prefer the freshly made home cooked soups.

"When in doubt have steak" is an ancient slogan [illegible] so many husbands insist on steak regardless of cost, the housewife who knows will get a serving of soup from the steak as well.

Suppose you purchase a porterhouse or Delmonico steak, cut off the tough tail piece, chop this fine and place it in a soup pot. Add half a finely chopped onion and cover with a quart and a half of cold water. Add half a teaspoonful of salt. Cook slowly for half an hour. This may be varied by the addition of two teaspoonfuls of left-over cooked peas or carrots, or [illegible] added or a little chopped celery. The left overs will suggest the kind of soup for the day to the thrifty woman.

If you purchase half a dozen rib lamb chops have the butcher crack the bone. Trim the chops. Put the bone ends and the meat that adheres into a pot. Add a quart and a cup of cold water and half a cup of canned tomatoes or [illegible] of tomato ketchup. A few [illegible] or some rice may be cooked [illegible]

Then, there are the [illegible] soups. Two cupfuls of cooked [illegible] or beans may be put through a fine strainer and combined with a quart of thickened milk. This may be seasoned with onion juice, salt, pepper, celery salt. The addition of a bit of bacon or ham rind is enjoyed by some.

One young housewife I know buys a two and one-half pound broiler chicken for her small family. The neck, tips of the wings, the feet after the outer skin has been removed may all go together with the giblets, toward making a delicious chicken soup.

A slice of veal, such as one gets for veal cutlet, will also give the thrifty housewife the base for a [illegible] cut the meat into [illegible] suitable for [illegible] Carefully remove the bone. [illegible] bone and meat in a pot [illegible] with water and simmer slowly for ten minutes. Remove [illegible] bone. Add [illegible] of minced onion, green pepper and a little vermicelli. A little chopped parsley may be sprinkled over the soup just before serving.

Bargaining.

Miss Hingham was an elderly aristocrat [illegible] and she had [illegible] her friend, Mrs. Briggs [illegible] little fellow [illegible] Tommy Briggs, junior [illegible] five years [illegible] You'll give me a kiss, won't you, Tommy?" Tommy did not evince any sign of eagerness to do so, but he kissed her. "That's a good boy," said the visitor. "But what are you holding in your hand so tight?" "It's [illegible]" [illegible] for less."

Anecdotes of the Famous

On one occasion Louis Sterne, an engineer and inventor, and a friend of Charles Dickens, showed [illegible]

[illegible] Turning to the Princess, His Royal Highness said:

"Hallo, there's Smith!"

At once a man standing near [illegible] the recognition, offering his hand which the Prince unhesitatingly accepted. When this man whose name happened to be Smith, recognized the Prince, he became embarrassed, and, with the lady who accompanied him, made his exit as soon as possible.

* * *

Wordsworth once called on Miss Harriet Martineau at Ambleside, where she had built a house. There was a gathering of neighbors present, and Wordsworth stood for a long time at the window contemplating the beautiful [illegible] side. Then he turned [illegible] and said:

"Miss Martineau, I [illegible] you on your beautiful [illegible]. The views are wonderful [illegible] will turn out to be [illegible] you ever did in your life."

He paused for a moment and the guests expected some comment on the uplifting effects of communion with Nature, but Wordsworth, with a fine gesture, went on:

"Your property will certainly be trebled in value within the next ten years!"

Law and Literature

In the history of [illegible] there are many names of writers who, at one time or another, were connected with the legal profession. Among the men of letters who have practised as attorneys are Lewis Theobald, the famous [illegible] of Shakespeare, Sir John Hawkins, the biographer of Dr. Johnson; James Smith, part author of "Rejected Addresses," Barry Cornwall, poet and dramatist; Shirley Brooks, novelist and editor of Punch, and Sir Theodore Martin. Many other names are to be found among authors who have worked in solicitors' offices without being admitted, these including Warburton, Chatterton, Cowper, Borrow, Disraeli, Dickens and Meredith.

Stocks Recede in Boston and New York Markets During Morning

TOBACCOS ARE A STRONG GROUP

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York at noon and there had been no time during the morning when the market displayed strength. The decline was steady after an uncertain opening. At the start, however, a number of issues advanced and irregularity as to price changes marked the list. Under selling pressure little resistance developed. Trading was active.

Tobaccos were strong. United Cigar Stores sold at its highest record price, and Sumatra at its 1919 highest. It is rumored that shareholders in the former may receive valuable subscription rights in regard to the new United Retail Stores Corporation. At noon United Cigar Stores was up 5¼ at 144¼, after selling at 145. Sumatra was 4 at 118¾. Tobacco Products had advanced 1½ to 105.

Largest declines were sustained by General Motors, Studebaker, Atlantic Gulf, American Sugar, American Woolen, Crucible, Mexican Petroleum, Ohio Cities Gas, Texas Company, Industrial Alcohol, U. S. Rubber and U. S. Food Products. They had receded from two to more than six points.

U. S. Steel was off 1¼ at 107⅝, after ranging from 106¾ to 108¼. Coppers averaged around a point lower, the weakest being Chino, Utah Copper and Anaconda. Rails were down from one to nearly two points, the weakest being Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific and Atchison. Pere Marquette was strong, showing 1½ gain at 25⅜.

MARKET IRREGULAR AT START.

Price irregularity characterized the market at the opening, and as soon as it was apparent that offerings exceeded demand to a considerable extent weakness developed almost at once. After a steady decline, which lasted through the first hour, a great majority of active issues were below Tuesday's closing quotations. U. S. Steel was lower from the start, and by the end of the first hour was off 2 points. Its unfilled tonnage report for May caused much comment and occasioned a good deal of disappointment. The Federal Reserve Board's warning against reckless speculation inspired caution on the part of the public no doubt, and the market this morning was more professional in nature than for some time. Declines during the first hour ranged from fractions to more than 6 points. Atlantic Gulf and General Motors were especially weak.

BEARS MORE AGGRESSIVE.

There was more aggression on the part of the bear crowd, and their following increased in number. They claimed the bull movement had culminated when coppers advanced, and pointed out that these issues in the past have always figured in the kind of a climax they assert has been reached. As usual the bulls maintained that reaction had to be expected, and that after this one stocks would resume their ascension. Neither side is at all sure of what the price trend is going to be, and there are misgivings as to possible developments in the money situation. The opinion prevails that liquidation is going on to a considerable extent, and is being engaged in by interests which seldom stay too long on the wrong side of the market.

Cotton Opens With Declines

New York, June 11.—Heavy selling caused cotton prices to decline 7 to 30 points at the opening. Prices were around a net loss of 35 points. The ginners' report checked the recession in twenty minutes and buying carried October contracts to 30.45, about 20 points under yesterday's close. Opening prices were: July, 31.30; Oct., 30.50; Dec., 30.20; Jan., 29.92; March, 29.57; May, 29.60.

COPPERS WEAK ON BOSTON EXCHANGE

Local Declines Averaged Small, but Were General During Morning

At the opening the Boston list was irregular, but the trend was downward from the start, and the local market followed New York during the morning. Business was of good volume and lacking in any particular feature. Sentiment was bearish, although there was no definite reason given for the change of mood.

Issues that showed the largest losses during the forenoon included United Fruit, New Haven, Isle Royale, Calumet & Arizona, Wolverine and Superior Steel. All of them declined a point or more.

Waldorf was higher at the start, but receded later. Ventura Oil was active within a narrow range, but showed a loss most of the time. American Telephone opened unchanged and receded a fraction. New Cornelia began at a decline, but rallied and was showing a gain in the second hour.

Coppers weakened as a class. There were a few strong points to be found in the list, but declines averaged small.

Steel Report Disappointing

Many stock market traders were disappointed because of the U. S. Steel Corporation's report that unfilled tonnage decreased 518,375 tons in May. Owing to rumors that demand for steel products had been increasing they expected a better showing. It is said, however, that the order for 245,000 tons placed by the General Motors Corporation was not received until June. One reason for the decrease in unfilled tonnage was great activity at steel plants.

Brokerage Firm Announcement

It is announced that the business of Fitzgerald, Hubbard & Co. will be continued by William F. Fitzgerald, George E. Clarkson, Charles G. Lenfest and Charles G. Lund, Jr., as partners.

TO GIRDLE WORLD WITH CIGAR STORES

The United Retail Cigar Stores Corporation, which has been organized in Delaware, is understood to have ben formed by George J. Whelan, Duke and Ryan interests to extend a chain of cigar stores around the world. It is rumored also that these stores may handle merchandise of all kinds.

The new corporation's authorized capital stock consists of 100,000 shares 8 per cent. cumulative preferred and 1,160,000 shares common stock without par value, all shares having equal voting power. According to rumor, a substantial amount of the stocks has been underwritten already.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN JUNE 11, 1919. BOSTON.

Don't Call Every Reformer a Bolshevist or I.W.W.

Governor Carl S. Milliken of Maine is a man who gives constant evidence of level-headedness. Last Friday in an address before the National Social Service Conference at Atlantic City, Governor Milliken warned the American people against becoming excited by the outcry of Bolshevism, I. W. Wism and Socialism against every reform which is suggested. Among other things he said:

> "America has just emerged triumphant from the great task which came with a challenge of the world's need. Our country was never so united, never so passionately loyal to the great principles that our flag embodies.
> "With all our enthusiasm for social welfare let us not waste time peering about for some bogie that is to overthrow the government or precipitate a new social order. In ordinary times the long-haired man and short-haired woman are treated with tolerant indifference, and while such notions make good newspaper copy, they should not be considered seriously now at the very time when the sound hearts and steady heads of our great people are accomplishing with very little jar and friction the greatest economic and industrial readjustment in all history."

If every honest reform and every honest critic of our social, economic and political condition continues to be called a Bolshevist, an I. W. W. and a Socialist, the effect clearly is not to stop the reform or to change the mind of the critic, but to promote Bolshevism and increase the number of Bolsheviki, by adding to their number those who stand for the moderate reforms absurdly and dishonestly denounced as Bolshevik and I. W. W.

Judge Callahan Proves a Real Representative of Justice

If all our judges dealt with situations as wisely and as fairly as Judge Christopher T. Callahan of our Superior Court dealt with the motion to continue the cases against the alleged rioters on May Day, there would be less agitation and discontent in this country than there is today.

Counsel for these men and women asked for a postponement of the trial on account of public excitement created by the recent bomb throwing which counsel contended was likely to influence a jury unfairly. In making his decision Judge Callahan said:

> "The residence of the trial judge who presided at these cases in the Municipal Court, who found judgment against the defendants and imposed sentence upon them, had been blown up. An honest, justified cry of protest and indignation has gone out from law-abiding people. There is a tone of justified savagery in that cry.
>
> "I am quite satisfied from examination of the question that, with the public mind filled with the idea that Judge Hayden's house was blown up by these defendants or their friends, a fair, impartial trial at this time is not possible. If it were known who did it and it did not appear that they were any of these defendants, there would be no reason for this motion; but that is the difficulty.
>
> "These defendants are human beings; they are members of the community, and the court fails, the court breaks down when it allows its own economical or political opinion to find expression in judicial action."

He spoke like a real judge representing justice whose eyes are blindfolded to social, political and economic views.

U.S. Shipping Board Hampers Port of Boston Shipping

Congressman Tinkham of Massachusetts has become aroused over what he alleges to be a discrimination, too great not to be deliberate, against the port of Boston by the United States Shipping Board. It is also alleged by the Chamber of Commerce that the Railroad Administration is not taking that care of New England with respect to coal rates that New England deserves.

Both of these are serious charges. The people of New England ought to be interested in them very seriously, for New England has a great many handicaps with respect to her geographical isolation and her lack of raw materials and the comparative sterility of her soil, which must be made up, or at least minimized, by such vigilance as will make impossible artificial disadvantages such as Congressman Tinkham charges against the Shipping Board and the Chamber of Commerce charges against the Railroad Administration.

Mr. Tinkham is a careful man. He is no clap-trap politician standing on his toes with his mouth wide open, poised to leap ahead of anybody else in something momentarily popular, without investigation concerning the truth or the seriousness of the subject.

Mr. Tinkham declares that the Shipping Board in distributing ships purchased and built by the government to the different ports has favored even Montreal, a foreign port, against Boston. He declares that Norfolk, Hampton Roads, New Orleans and Galveston have all fared better than Boston in the amount of tonnage assigned to these cities, although these ports are less important.

Our original prosperity came to us in ships. The hope of becoming once more the great maritime section of the American continent has always appealed to the imagination of patriotic New Englanders. If we cannot get what even belongs to us, we cannot hope to lead.

William H. Chandler, manager of the transportation bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, is also not only a careful man as to his facts, but one of the best informed men concerning railroad transportation that we have in the country, whether officially connected with the railroads or in their unofficial life.

Mr. Chandler considers the discrimination against New England on coal a matter of grave concern to New England manufactures. Of course, a blow at New England manufactures is a blow at both capital and labor involved in the industry. We cannot prosper in New England unless we can compete with the rest of the country; and we cannot compete with the rest of the country if we do not have a fair deal in the matter of freight rates.

By K. C. B.

DEAR K. C. B.—I have discovered a place where a woman who runs a tiny candy shop for children and who sells an occasional newspaper still sells ice cream cones for a penny and defies the government in its demand for a tax on penny ice cream cones. Knowing the price of cream per gallon and how utterly impossible it is to sell the cream for a penny a cone without loss, I asked her why she did it, and this was her answer: "How can I refuse these poor kiddies who come with their one penny. It is so hot and they are so warm and thirsty and it seems a shame that so many cannot afford more than a penny a day while others have so much more. So I simply cut down the quantity in the rich little children's cones and give the difference to the poor little children. In other words, I make the rich pay for the poor."

How about it, K. C. B.?

* * *
AT THE neighborhood store.
* * *
AND I'D get off the car.
* * *
AND WALK around.
* * *
AND GET all het up.
* * *
AND DO my shopping.
* * *
AND WHATEVER the price.
* * *
IT WOULD be all right.
* * *
AND THEN this year.
* * *
WE CAME back again.
* * *
AND BEFORE we came.
* * *
WE HAD bought a car.
* * *
AND IT keeps me broke.
* * *
JUST RUNNING it around.
* * *
AND I'M much worse off.
* * *
THAN I was last year.
* * *
AND THIS very day.
* * *
I WENT into town.
* * *
AND WE drove right up.
WITH OUR big green car.
* * *
AND ITS white wire wheels.
* * *
AND I asked the woman.
* * *
THE PRICE of the spinnach.
* * *
AND SHE looked at the car.
* * *
AND SAID 60 cents.
* * *
FOR JUST one peck.
* * *
AND I had it on the list.
* * *
THAT MY wife had given me.
* * *
AND I had to buy it.
* * *
AND TWO minutes later.
* * *
A NEIGHBOR of mine.
* * *
WHO HADN'T shaved.
* * *
AND LOOKED like a tramp.
* * *
AND HAS nothing but coin.
* * *
AND ONLY two cars.
* * *
GOT A peck of the stuff.
* * *
FOR FORTY cents.
* * *
BECAUSE HE'D walked from the place.
* * *
* * *
BUT EVEN at that.
* * *
I'M STRONG for the woman.
* * *
AND HER penny cones.

I THANK you.

Simon Swig Replies

Editor Boston American:

Thursday's papers represented a patient at the Rutland Sanatorium as saying that I sought to have a "coat of whitewash" applied to the board of trustees for consumptive hospitals as a result of evidence to be offered to the legislative Committee on Public Institutions when it should investigate complaints affecting the institution by having it appear that there was nothing more there than a "family misunderstanding." In return for the use of the "brush," the articles, all relating to a hearing held by the committee, reported one patient as affirming that I gave him $100.

I am not a member of the visiting committee of the Rutland Sanatorium, and I have no object in having the trustees "whitewashed." At no time had any complaint been made to the board about the food. When I learned from unofficial sources that dissatisfaction existed, I visited the institution to learn what the trouble was about, because from my first connection with the board of trustees I have been interested deeply in the welfare of the patients, and I believe that I have their good will.

During my visit of investigation I contributed to the entertainment fund of the sanatorium. I may be pardoned for mentioning that it was not the first time I had made a donation for like purposes to State institutions. Whatever my practical sympathy prompted me to do on any and all occasions was not done to predispose the patients and officials in favor of myself individually or of my colleagues as a body.

When there is just cause for complaint on the part of the patients, the grievance ought to be made known and acted upon immediately. Possibly it might be better to report the facts to the trustees first; nevertheless if a different procedure is followed it matters not to me.

I shall make no comment at this time on the conditions at Rutland, because I do not want to anticipate the findings of the legislative committee; yet it may not be amiss to state that our public institutions are by no means free of agitators and disturbers, who make life miserable for themselves and for others.

Consumptives who are in the several hospitals belonging to the State are battling for their lives. They deserve every consideration, every help and persistent and practical encouragement. Since they are peculiarly sensitive, they become influenced easily into believing that proper treatment is not accorded. However, they should not be censored for this susceptibility to unwise criticism and captious fault-finding. They are not to blame for their condition of body or mind.

Just as it is necessary for a community to rid itself of professional agitators and chronic kickers against the established order of things, just so necessary is it to turn from State institutions the same class of disturbers when the groundlessness of the complaints is proven. With the elimination of the undesirables, who do not include, I would be understood as saying, those patients who have just cause to speak their minds concerning their treatment, peace and contentment will exist in the sanatoria.

How a mere gift to help the patients secure better entertainments could be misconstrued as an attempt to get them to testify falsely is something I cannot understand. I was with the patients in everything they wanted to have done, and my heart beats in truest sympathy with them. So long as I am a trustee they will get justice. I regret that any act of kindness on my part could have been interpreted in an unfair light.

SIMON SWIG,
Trustee State Hospitals for Consumptives.

CONSIDERING SOME QUEER FACTS OF NATURE

By Garrett P. Serviss

HERE are two questions to which the asker says he can get no answer:

(1) "If a vertical line at New York be extended through the earth and made to project from the other side, will this projecting line be a vertical line?"

(2) "If a running siphon be placed under the receiver of an air pump, and the air be exhausted to one-tenth, how much more slowly will the siphon run than when under full atmospheric pressure?"

I cannot undertake to answer all those which, like the above, involve broad principles and facts which it would be useful and interesting to everybody to know. They are of the nature of the mental food on which Isaac Newton nourished the beginnings of the questions of this kind, but only mightiest scientific intelligence ever developed by a human being, as when, for instance, in his boyhood, he undertook to measure the force of the great tempest that roared over England on the day that Oliver Cromwell died by jumping first with the wind and then against it.

(1) A vertical line at New York extended straight through the earth would not, except by a miracle of chance, be a vertical line at the point where it emerged. It would be vertical if the earth were an absolutely perfect sphere, of uniform density throughout, because then a line which was vertical at any point on the earth would be vertical at any other point, since all such lines would necessarily meet exactly at the centre.

Scientific Conclusions

In truth, the most careful investigations of the earth's shape prove that it does not perfectly accord with any regular geometrical solid. The consequence is that lines which are vertical to its surface at one point may not be vertical if transferred, without change of direction, to another point.

There are places where the plumb-line falls as much as ten seconds of arc aside from the position that it would occupy if the rocks below and all around were of uniform density. Some of these cases are very puzzling.

There is a place on the coast of Scotland, in the County of Banff, where the mysterious local attraction is so strong that the romantic imagination might picture a vast pocket of solid gold, as big as a mountain, lying just under the rocky shell.

Location of the Zenith

All these causes of variation in the direction of the vertical are the source of fundamental trouble for astronomers and geodesists, of which the ordinary public never hears. One of the most important things for the astronomer to know with exactness is the location of his zenith, or point directly overhead, which, of course, is determined by extending the indication of the plumb-line to the sky.

On this depends the determination of latitude on the earth. But if the vertical is misplaced by some unexpected side attraction all the delicate calculations based upon it are vitiated. Few imagine the infinite pains, the measureless ingenuity and the tireless application required to furnish us curious-minded human insects with the really remarkable amount of knowledge that the best specimens of our fussy little race have accumulated about the spinning globe on which we live, as well as about its inaccessible celestial surroundings.

(2) Since the action of a siphon depends upon the ratio of the pressure of the atmosphere to the weight of water to be raised to the top of the tube, if either of these elements is altered the limit of height at which the instrument remains effective must vary proportionally.

If the pressure is reduced to one-tenth of its normal amount, the weight of the water remaining the same as before, the siphon will cease to act at one-tenth of the former height. The velocity of flow is governed by gravity, and varies in proportion to the square root of the height, or "head." In a perfect vacuum the siphon would not work at all. In ordinary circumstances the maximum height to which the water can be carried is about thirty-three feet.

Shorter Hours Coming
Lighthouses Point Up
Where Are the Great Men?
Actors and Pictures

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1919.)

The shipbuilders of Montreal demand a forty-four-hour week, four hours on Saturday, eight hours the other five working days. The cloak and suit makers of New York have the forty-four-hour week already. It will come everywhere, giving workers half a day to themselves on Saturday, and all day Sunday.

When it comes everywhere it won't hurt anybody, for all employers will be on the same footing.

The wise employer does not object to wages or hours within reason, if others work as he does, on the same basis of pay and time. The trouble comes when one employer without conscience gets out of his men more work for less pay, creating impossible competition for the other employer.

That, by the way, is the whole curse of the so-called beautiful theory of free trade. With free trade the men that get the most work out of other men for least money get the markets of the world.

These higher wages and shorter hours which are coming will compel intelligent men to see how much they can get out of machines, instead of striving always to see how much they get out of human beings.

For instance, the shipworker who drove rivets by hand with a steel hammer was paid just about what it cost him to live. Then the "air gun" was invented, enabling one man to drive ten times as many rivets as he had driven by hand. Yet the same worker with the "air gun" continued to get only about what it cost him to live.

Machinery has added to the productivity of labor, multiplied by a thousand the wealth of the world; it has not added enough to the pay or to the leisure of the worker of the machine. That has got to be changed, and, thanks to the war, it will be changed.

Great Britain will use all of her lighthouses as guides to flying men, in addition to the rays of light now sent out to ships on the water. Other rays will be sent up straight into the sky, to guide sailors in those modern ships of air—the flying boat. Before long the earth's surface will be dotted with light spots that will indicate safe landing places for fliers, as lighthouses indicate safe harbors for the other ships now.

Mr. Vanderlip, retired president of the biggest bank in the United States, is the latest to be mentioned as a candidate for President on the Republican ticket next year. The mention is interesting.

If you had to name the man that had to be elected President in 1920 what name would you suggest?

Does it seem to you interesting or strange that out of a hundred million Americans there should be so few, if any, standing out as nationally known and inevitably to be chosen for the great honor?

Why is it that so few Americans do anything to attract especial attention? They talk of Pershing because Mr. Wilson put him in charge in Europe. If Mr. Wilson had put somebody else in charge in Europe they would talk about the somebody else.

How many men could you name that in your opinion ought to be President of the United States because of special fitness or services rendered to the people?

Mr. Arliss, the actor, made "Master of Arts" by Columbia College, made a little speech against moving pictures. He was distressed that young men and women, eighteen and twenty years old, should see moving pictures instead of living, talking actors.

Human beings seek sensations and impressions in their own minds. A story or an idea enters the brain more quickly through the eyes than through the ears. Men have used their eyes to gain information for more than a million years; they have used speech for one or two hundred thousand years at most. The average human being cannot absorb easily, or at all, complicated sentences. The eye, on the other hand, understands instantly. Pictures move rapidly.

The sound of the actor's voice is sometimes pleasant. His individual appearance may be pleasing, but real power is in expression, movement. Moving pictures give all that, and in many cases they give what no spoken play could possibly give.

Suppose you wanted to show on the stage the crucifixion of St. Peter head downward, as Rubens painted it; the burning of Joan of Arc, the recantation of Galileo, the courageous death of the monk Savonarola, how would you do it? Certainly you could show ten times more in the moving picture than with living actors.

Plays, like books, are intended to make human beings think. Well prepared moving pictures of the right kind undoubtedly create more though, more rapid action, within the mind of the spectator than the spoken play. Hence the success of the moving picture.
